Multilevel lot near rail station asked by panel

A multitiered parking garage designed to straddle the Chicago & North Western Ry. tracks was selected Thursday night as the best method of revitalizing and connecting the Arlington Heights central business district.

The concept was selected by the subcommittee charged with reviewing alternatives to improve the downtown area.

Its recommendation will be reviewed by another subcommittee studying the feasibility and financing possibilities for parking garages, and then by the village board's blue ribbon committee headed by Trustee August Bettman.

THE NEED FOR a multitiered garage was the consensus of the three committee members present Thursday night. It was chosen from three final alternatives presented by Village Planner Joseph Kesler.

The garage could accommodate a small shopping center on the lower level and office space on top, Kesler said. It also would serve as both a vehicular and pedestrian bridge to join the now-separated business district, he said.

The preliminary cost estimate for such a structure, which would provide 2,350 parking spaces, is $7 million, plus any charge levied by the railroad company for the air rights over the tracks, Kesler said.

The other two alternatives called for either four multitiered parking garages to be located on the perimeter of the central business district, or 13 double-deck garages on scattered sites.

ALL THREE PLANS were criticized by the owners of two businesses on Miner Street because each plan calls for that street to be closed to vehicular traffic to become a pedestrian shoppers mall.

"Why don't you do something about the parking and the cadet program instead of blocking us off with malls," said Robert Goebbert of Bob's Market.

"I haven't met anyone on the North Side that wants this project. It would take you 20 years to reach us (with a connection), but you'll want to assess us from the first day," said Peter Weingart of Classic Tailors.

The plans also call for Campbell Street to become a full mall and for semi-malls to be built on Vail, Dunton and Evergreen avenues.

WILLIAM GRIFFITH, chairman of the subcommittee, responded to the two merchants by saying the malls "are needed to increase your business and to encourage new businesses to locate here."

The central business district in Arlington Heights accounts for only 1.3 per cent of the assessed valuation in the village compared to a 10 per cent average in most communities, said Earl Johnson, executive manager of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce.

All downtown businessmen have been invited to attend a meeting at 9 a.m. Thursday at the Arlington Federal Savings and Loan Building to discuss proposed improvements for the central business district.

Johnson's subcommittee will meet at 8 p.m. Monday at the village hall to discuss possible methods of financing the improvements.

Dem claims of suburb gains false

by STEVE BROWN
A news analysis

Quick, lock the gates to Lincoln County, there are 12,000 Democrats missing in the five Northwest suburban townships that generally make up the mythical county sought by Republicans in this area.

An examination of the election returns in the Northwest suburbs, shows Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett edged Gov. Daniel Walker 15,623 to 14,410 in the Democratic gubernatorial primary, but their combined vote totals nearly 12,500 votes short of the totals amassed by Walker and U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-24th, in 1972.

Some political leaders in Chicago are boasting of Howlett's big win in the suburbs, and say the results show the increased power of the Daley machine in the suburbs.

BALONEY. The results suggest fewer suburban Republicans crossed over to vote for Democrats in this primary election.

Throughout the area, Howlett won in Wheeling, Elk Grove and Maine Townships. The governor carried Palatine and Schaumburg townships. In 1972, Walker carried all five townships, in some cases by 2-1 margins.

It is also interesting to note the total Democratic vote in the governor's race in suburban Cook County is about 22,000 votes less than the 1972 totals. This suggests the 12,000 "missing Democrats in this area makes up better than half of the total number of "missing" Democrats in the entire suburban area.

Howlett carried the suburbs over Walker by a margin of 116,957 to 93,171, which does show one thing — Dan Walker was not perceived as the same darling voters thought him to be four years ago.

SOME OBSERVERS suggest the education-conscious suburban voters may have rebelled against Walker.

The governor's claim to no tax increase has an empty sound to it in the suburbs where school boards are facing local tax hikes, teacher layoffs and the possibility of reductions in extracurricular programs in an effort to live within the reduced amount of aid they are getting from the state.

The education vote may be part of the defection, but the results suggest those savvy GOP voters who thought they were being so smart by voting against the machine and for the "unknown" candidate to face Richard Oglilvie in 1972 either stayed home or voted in the Republican primary.

There were 34,000 Republican votes cast in the area, the Democrats had 30,000.

The Walker-Simon battle, combined with the dimly-remembered Edward Hanrahan race for Cook County State's Attorney in 1972 brought out a 60 per cent Democratic vote in the suburbs.

THIS YEAR, the majority of the voters in this area were Republican. Throughout all of suburban Cook County, however, GOP faithfuls cast about 145,000 votes to 210,000 in the Democratic primary.

A final observation to puncture the myth of vastly increased Daley power in the suburbs. New Trier Township went for Howlett, who was endorsed by the Democratic organization there.

But the "regulars," who are led by Committeeman Lynn Williams, a maverick curmudgeon who has been a target of Daley move to organize suburban Democratic clubs to battle independents, turned out the second lowest vote for Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan of any township in the suburbs.

Williams noted Hartigan was not endorsed by his organization. Hartigan did get more votes than Howlett though, and a review of those facts suggest independent, suburban Democrats are not ready to fall down and play dead for Daley.

There may be some small gains for the Daley organization, but he is far from owning the suburbs.

Seniors panel staff request denied

The finance committee of the Arlington Heights Village Board has rejected a request for $12,000 to $16,000 to hire a human relations coordinator.

The request for the coordinator, who would manage senior citizen and youth programs in the village, will be reviewed again by the full board April 5 when the 1976-77 budget is presented for adoption.

The request, submitted by John W. Gianopulos, chairman of the senior citizens commission, was turned down by a 2-1 vote Tuesday.

TRUSTEES Frank Palmatier and August Bettman voted against the request, and Trustee Madeline Schroeder supported the bid.

Bettman and Mrs. Schroeder are not regular members of the finance committee but were allowed to vote because trustees Richard Durava and O.V. Anderson did not attend the meeting.

The request from Gianopulos was originally just for a senior citizens coordinator, but he later accepted a stipulation that the position be expanded to include youth council programs.

Gianopulos said he is hopeful the full board will overturn the finance committee's decision.

"I think they realize the senior citizens commission can go no further

Guru's eyes radiate peace as followers find strength

WEDNESDAY NIGHT (VERY LATE) — I just returned from two hours spent in strict attention to a man who wears black hair way past his shoulders. Yet that does not seem to matter.

He speaks very softly, pushes himself upon no man or woman and only hopes that people everywhere give themselves a chance to breathe, to find something beautiful in life.

His name is Yogi Amrit Desai, now of Pennsylvania, formerly of India. He wears white socks, sits cross-legged on nice furniture and radiates strength in a roomful of people wha are seeking strength.

If that does not provide instant name recognition, then perhaps this will be of some consolation.

THE ONLY YOGI I had ever appreciated before this evening was Yogi Bear. And even then, I always favored his little friend, Boo-Boo.

I could recite all Yogi Amrit Desai's lengthy and honorable qualifications. Perhaps even say that Desai is a close disciple of His Holiness Swami Shri Kripalvanandji. And so much more.

But that would just confuse us both.

Suffice it to explain that Yogi Amrit Desai is a master in spiritual yoga. Some have called him saint. Others only let it be known that Yogi Desai improved their lives. And they are thankful.

There were nearly two dozen visitors crowded into Monika Moeller's home in Arlington Heights.

THE PEOPLE CAME, all ages of men and women, to see Yogi Desai, founder-director of Kripalu Yoga Fellowship. Desai and more than 100 followers live on the 240-acre Kripalu Ashram in Pennsylvania.

This stop finsihed a busy day of "campaigning" for Desai, who has appeared on television and radio. His weekend retreat begins today in Round Lake and concludes Sunday.

Yogi Desai came to Monika Moeller's home in peace. He was accompanied by Gopi, the young woman who is his disciple and serves Desai because of love and respect.

Monika would later say that she knew Gopi three years ago. The young woman has matured greatly. No one sees anything improper about Gopi being with Desai while his wife and three children are home.

THAT IS BECAUSE there is nothing improper.

The people came to ask Yogi Amrit Desai about Christ consciousness, about speaking in tongues, about chanting and their strong experiences in yoga.

"I believe in Christ," said Desai who is 43 but looks much younger and has practiced yoga for 27 years. Yogi Desai came to the United States in 1960.

Desai spoke about his "Pathless Path," a premise that our unconscious minds will care better for the body than our conscious minds.

The "Pathless Path," Desai said, is not designed by any person. It is one's reaction to himself. And the people listened very intently

Herald writers get Scher award

Two Herald staff members were awarded the prestigious Jacob Scher award for excellence in investigative reporting Thursday night by the Chicago Chapter of Women in Communications.

Metropolitan staff writer Al Messerschmidt and Assignment Editor Toni Ginnetti received the recognition for their study of drunken driving arrests in the Northwest suburbs. Their six-part series, "Justice and the Drunken Driver," was published in July 1975.

Al Messerschmidt

It was judged the best investigative reporting last year by a community newspaper.

It was the fifth consecutive year Herald staff members received the Jacob Scher award.

Messerschmidt, who joined The Herald in 1972, is the newspaper's chief investigative reporter. He is a 1971 master's graduate of the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University.

Ginnetti also joined the staff in 1972, following her graduation from Northwestern.

A year-long study preceded the drunken driving series. The pair examined thousands of court records and interviewed judges, attorneys, police and accused drunken drivers. Data from court records were analyzed on Herald computers.

The award for investigative reporting is given in honor of the late Jacob Scher, Northwestern University journalism professor, newspaperman and authority on press law and freedom of information.

3 hurt in accident at chemical plant

Three men were injured, one seriously, Thursday night when a chemical vat ignited at an Elk Grove Village company. The men, employes at the Morton Chemical Co., 2401 Pratt Blvd., were attempting to put a cover on the vat when the chemicals ignited at 8:41 p.m. Capt. Donald Kuhn of the Elk Grove Village Fire Dept. said it was unknown if the blaze started from a spark or a chemical reaction. Listed in serious condition at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, was Robert Stahl, 34, of Chicago Ridge. Stahl later was transferred to the Loyola University Hospital burns unit in Maywood with serious burns on his face and arms. Isaiah Southward and Diaz Dionicio, both of Chicago, were treated and released from Alexian Brothers.

New 50c lottery game planned

A new 50-cent game in the Illinois state lottery will provide twice as many chances to win as the old, highly successful half-dollar competition. Lottery Supt. Ralph F. Batch told a news conference Thursday the new gamble will be called the Bicentennial game. Each ticket will consist of two sections, the regular stub and the Bicentennial stub. Prizes will include entry into the Bicentennial drawing and cash sums from $5 to $1,001,776. Batch said current 50-cent tickets will not be sold after March 30. He said ticket holders should check their lottery tickets in the present 50-cent game before May 3, the deadline to register for the last millionaire and the last $300,000 bonanza drawings. Drawings will continue to take place at WGN-TV, Chicago, but the day will be changed to Thursday afternoon from the present Saturday night.

Bonanza drawings will be held in conjunction with the Thursday drawings every time 10 bonanza qualifiers are registered or approximately every other week.

3 hurt in accident at chemical plant

Three men were injured, one seriously, Thursday night when a chemical vat ignited at an Elk Grove Village company. The men, employes at the Morton Chemical Co., 2401 Pratt Blvd., were attempting to put a cover on the vat when the chemicals ignited at 8:41 p.m. Capt. Donald Kuhn of the Elk Grove Village Fire Dept. said it was unknown if the blaze started from a spark or a chemical reaction. Listed in serious condition at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, was Robert Stahl, 34, of Chicago Ridge. Stahl later was transferred to the Loyola University Hospital burns unit in Maywood with serious burns on his face and arms. Isaiah Southward and Diaz Dionicio, both of Chicago, were treated and released from Alexian Brothers.

New 50c lottery game planned

A new 50-cent game in the Illinois state lottery will provide twice as many chances to win as the old, highly successful half-dollar competition. Lottery Supt. Ralph F. Batch told a news conference Thursday the new gamble will be called the Bicentennial game. Each ticket will consist of two sections, the regular stub and the Bicentennial stub. Prizes will include entry into the Bicentennial drawing and cash sums from $5 to $1,001,776. Batch said current 50-cent tickets will not be sold after March 30. He said ticket holders should check their lottery tickets in the present 50-cent game before May 3, the deadline to register for the last millionaire and the last $300,000 bonanza drawings. Drawings will continue to take place at WGN-TV, Chicago, but the day will be changed to Thursday afternoon from the present Saturday night.

Bonanza drawings will be held in conjunction with the Thursday drawings every time 10 bonanza qualifiers are registered or approximately every other week.

Vandalism, gang warfare rampant in schools: study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Assault, mugging, vandalism and gang warfare are rampant in America's schools and demand a nationwide crime control effort, a federally financed study said Thursday.

It recommended the federal government spend $12.6 million on a program designed to combat what it described as a virtual reign of schoolhouse terror.

"It is fair to conclude that school violence and disruption is a serious and costly national problem," said the report prepared by Research for Better Schools Inc., of Philadelphia, for the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

"A problem of this magnitude warrants a national effort."

It said the parents, students and educators surveyed are not merely griping about individual acts of violence by bullies.

"They are more concerned about their schools being trapped in a web of violence and disruption which is destroying their effectiveness as institutions of learning."

The study, financed by a $117,000 grant from the LEAA, was based on interviews and conferences with educators, parents and students, on congressional testimony and a scattering of statistics.

While no overall nationwide statistics were available, the report cited various findings suggesting a sharp rise in schoolhouse crime. They included:

• An 85.3 per cent increase nationwide in assaults on students and a 77.4 per cent increase in assaults on teachers between 1970 and 1973. It said this violence is still increasing.

• Senate testimony indicating there were 474 assaults on teachers and staff at New York City schools in the first five months of the 1974-75 school year.

• A Temple University study showing that one fourth of 595 black students interviewed felt unsafe in school, while more than half the mothers feared their children might be assaulted.

• An estimate that vandalism cost schools $500 million in the 1972-73 school year.

The report said many schools have instituted their own security programs and some are getting results by posting professional guards, using student patrols and issuing student identity cards.

But it proposed the federal government launch a $12.6 million nationwide assistance program.

It would spend $7.5 million to finance 500 local action teams, $2.5 million to give selected schools technical assistants, $1.5 million to establish regional centers and $950,000 to finance a national administrative agency.

Beirut's seaside area pounded by heavy artillery

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslems and Christians battled with heavy artillery amid the ruins of luxury hotels along the seaside Thursday, plunging Lebanon further into the anarchy wrought by civil war and rebellion in the army.

Political warlords, under pressure from Syria, plotted moves to end the current round of fighting through a new agreement approved by all sides, but rebel army leaders insisted it include the resignation of President Suleiman Franjieh.

Fighting in and around Beirut claimed at least 10 lives with nearly 30 persons wounded. Casualties in the weeklong series of clashes which followed an army coup rose to 200 dead and more than 470 wounded.

The worst battles were around the ruins of Beirut's luxury hotels on the seafront where leftist forces brought in a 105 mm recoiless rifle and a twin-barrelled anti-aircraft gun to pound the already devastated Holiday Inn.

Right-wing Phalangists, entrenched inside the battered hotel, poured a steady rain of rockets at their attackers and machinegunners on both sides raked the area.

In the east, a heavy overnight battle between Phalangists at Kahhaleh and Moslem leftists from Aley died away to sporadic small arms fire after leftists had used artillery.

Aley is the hometown of Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt, an avowed foe of Franjieh whose presidential palace lies near Kahhaleh.

"We fired around the palace not to let Franjieh sleep," Jumblatt said.

The commander of the rebel army "corrective movement," Brig. Gen. Aziz Ahdab, whose bid for power a week ago sparked the current conflict, also repeated his call for Franjieh to quit.

"He should resign immediately to avoid further bloodshed," Ahdab said.

Jumblatt has been a strong supporter of the rebel Lebanese Arab Army.

Elsewhere in the Middle East: Israeli authorities moved thousands of crack troops into the stife-ridden occupied West Bank of Jordan. Israeli newspapers said the security forces were under orders to put down any further disturbances with a "mailed fist."

ISRAELI TROOPS arrest an Arab youth lying in the road after a rock-throwing incident in Israeli-Occupied Jordan. Occupation authorities Thursday poured thousands of crack troops into the strife-ridden West Bank area and reported the first relatively quiet day in two weeks.

Yard rides 'shotgun' in the subway

LONDON (UPI) — An army of 1,000 police, some packing pistols and shoulder holsters, rode "shotgun" on London's subway trains Thursday, searching commuters and their baggage in an effort to thwart the IRA bomb war.

It was the first time in the 113-year history of London's underground train system that Scotland Yard ordered armed protection for subway riders.

The Yard canceled police leave and ordered the operation, including about 100 armed plainclothesmen, following the discovery Wednesday of a nine-pound bomb hidden in a briefcase and planted out of sight under a subway train seat cushion. It was the third subway bomb since Monday.

Hundreds of rush hour subway passengers had their bags and cases searched in scores of the system's 270 stations. Other officers patrolled the crowded compartments.

Bailey tells jury: Patty sought to survive

SAN FRANCISICO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's lawyer pleaded with the jury at her trial Thursday not to look on the case as one of bank robbery but of a human being's right to survive.

In a final argument lasting only 45 minutes, attorney F. Lee Bailey had the federal courtroom hushed as he said that survival was all that Miss Hearst thought about after she was kidnaped.

"And the question is, what is the right to live? How far can you go to survive?" Bailey said.

"We're all going to die and we know it. And we're all going to postpone that date as long as we can. And Patty Hearst did that and that is why she is here and you are here."

Bailey's last appeal to the jury in the eight-week-old trial followed the closing argument by government prosecutor James L. Browning Jr., who had told the jurors that Miss Hearst's entire story of being brainwashed was "too big a pill to swallow — it just doesn't wash."

Browning said that it was "only by the grace of God" that the young woman did not kill someone in spraying a storefront with machinegun fire a month after the bank robbery for which she is on trial.

Browning said Miss Hearst's act of rescuing people who had kidnaped her and forced her into the bank holdup "was incredible" and showed that her entire story is false.

The final arguments from the two sides concluded the case except for final legal instructions from U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter.

The jury of seven women and five men is expected to begin deliberation on Miss Hearst's guilt or innocence around noon Friday.

Miss Hearst listened with such fascination that she might have been in a trance as Bailey sought to persuade the jury to set her free.

"A young girl who absolutely had no political motivations or history of activity of any kind, was rudely snatched from her home, clouted on the side of the face with a gun butt and taken as a political prisoner," Bailey said.

"She did rob a bank. You are not here to answer that question, we could answer that without you. The question you are here is to answer is why.

"And would you have done the same thing to survive? Or was it her duty to die to avoid committing a felony? That is all this case is about and all the muddling and stamping of exhibits and the little monkeys and everything else that has been thrown into this morass doesn't answer that question."

Bailey's referral to "little monkeys" was a rejoinder to the finale of Browning's presentation in which he picked up a small stone monkey face amulet and told the jury it had been given to Miss Hearst by "Kujo," the Willie Wolfe of the Symbionese Liberation Army and said it was found in her purse 18 months after Wolfe perished in a fiery shootout with police in Los Angeles.

Browning said the most crucial parts of the circumstantial evidence were the events at Mel's Sporting Goods Store in Los Angeles on May 16, 1974, when Miss Hearst opened fire with two automatic weapons at the time she saw two SLA members, William and Emily Harris, being arrested.

"I suggest that it is reasonable to believe that a person who is in fear of being killed by her captors does not, when confronted with an opportunity to escape from her captors, fire weapons in the direction of other persons in order to free them," he said.

Bailey said "real life" doesn't work so that he could prove Miss Hearst innocent.

"We can't bring home the bacon. We have given you all we have got. No one is ever going to be sure. They will be talking about the case for longer than I think I am going to have to talk about it.

"But simple application of the rules will yield one decent result that there is not anything close to proof beyond a reasonable doubt that Patty Hearst wanted to be a bank robber.

"What you know, and you know in your hearts, to be true is beyond dispute. There was talk about her dying and she wanted to survive.

"Thank God, so far she has."

Drought still plagues western U.S.

A drought that began last fall still plagues much of the western half of the nation, creating economic hardships for many farmers but not affecting grocery prices. "There shouldn't be any price increase to the consumer," said Don McCarty of Ashland in southwest Kansas. The total drought area ranges from Minnesota and the Dakotas through Texas and westward to California. Recent rains have eased the problem in Iowa and California. But for many California farmers the moisture came too late, and they lost crops or had to sell cattle underweight.

Eight out of 10 refugees land jobs

Despite language and cultural problems more than 8 out of 10 employable Indochinese refugees have landed jobs in the United States, the head of the International Rescue Committee said Thursday in New York. Charles Sternberg, executive director of the IRC, said the refugees still face difficulties in finding jobs in their original profession because they don't speak adequate English. He added they also face the same problem encountered by millions of Americans — not enough jobs for those willing to work.

Church joins Democratic field

Reagan: Ford should quit the race

by United Press International

The contest for the Democratic presidential nomination got a new entrant Thursday. But the Republican field stayed at two, with Ronald Reagan suggesting that according to previous standards President Ford is the one who should think about withdrawing.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, made his candidacy official with a speech in Idaho City, Idaho, Thursday castigating a national "leadership of weakness and fear." Church, 51, is a 19-year Senate veteran and head of the special committee preparing its final report on U.S. intelligence activities. He is planning to enter the "late primaries beginning with Nebraska May 11.

The next primary is in North Carolina, where Jimmy Carter and George Wallace compete against one another next week for the third straight time.

Reagan said in Greensboro the pressure from Republicans on him to quit the race is "engineered from the same place that engineered the pressure to keep me out of the race in the first place — the White House."

Noting that some media commentators said last year Ford should consider withdrawing if Reagan got 40 per cent or more in the early primaries, the former governor of California asked, "Why doesn't he quit?"

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford has neither asked nor authorized anyone to sound out Reagan about quitting the race, and some conservative congressmen said they are encouraging Reagan to stay in until the end.

Carter said in Charlotte he would win the primary because of his stand on the issues. Referring to criticism of him by Wallace, Carter said, "I don't ever want to get involved in a contest between personalities. I want people to look at me and my record as governor and look at Gov. Wallace and his record as governor and decide which one you think would be a better president."

"There shouldn't be any price increase to the consumer," said Don McCarty of Ashland in southwest Kansas. The total drought area ranges from Minnesota and the Dakotas through Texas and westward to California. Recent rains have eased the problem in Iowa and California. But for many California farmers the moisture came too late, and they lost crops or had to sell cattle underweight.

Eight out of 10 refugees land jobs

Despite language and cultural problems more than 8 out of 10 employable Indochinese refugees have landed jobs in the United States, the head of the International Rescue Committee said Thursday in New York. Charles Sternberg, executive director of the IRC, said the refugees still face difficulties in finding jobs in their original profession because they don't speak adequate English. He added they also face the same problem encountered by millions of Americans — not enough jobs for those willing to work.

Church joins Democratic field

Reagan: Ford should quit the race

by United Press International

The contest for the Democratic presidential nomination got a new entrant Thursday. But the Republican field stayed at two, with Ronald Reagan suggesting that according to previous standards President Ford is the one who should think about withdrawing.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, made his candidacy official with a speech in Idaho City, Idaho, Thursday castigating a national "leadership of weakness and fear." Church, 51, is a 19-year Senate veteran and head of the special committee preparing its final report on U.S. intelligence activities. He is planning to enter the "late primaries beginning with Nebraska May 11.

The next primary is in North Carolina, where Jimmy Carter and George Wallace compete against one another next week for the third straight time.

Reagan said in Greensboro the pressure from Republicans on him to quit the race is "engineered from the same place that engineered the pressure to keep me out of the race in the first place — the White House."

Noting that some media commentators said last year Ford should consider withdrawing if Reagan got 40 per cent or more in the early primaries, the former governor of California asked, "Why doesn't he quit?"

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford has neither asked nor authorized anyone to sound out Reagan about quitting the race, and some conservative congressmen said they are encouraging Reagan to stay in until the end.

Carter said in Charlotte he would win the primary because of his stand on the issues. Referring to criticism of him by Wallace, Carter said, "I don't ever want to get involved in a contest between personalities. I want people to look at me and my record as governor and look at Gov. Wallace and his record as governor and decide which one you think would be a better president."

Independent analysis sought

State to review Dist. 21 budget

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education has requested an independent analysis of its 1976-77 budget projections by the Illinois Office of Education.

The Dist. 21 teachers union last Thursday asked for the state education office review to provide an independent evaluatio of the current budget, revenue projections and next year's budget.

John Barger, associate superintendent, said an Illinois Office of Education representative will evaluate the administration's budget projections based on last year's audit.

BARGER SAID he hoped that report would be complete by the March 25 board meeting.

The board two weeks ago approved cuts to offset an anticipated $1 million deficit in the 1976-77 budget. The cuts included the elimination of 50 of the district's 420 teachers, reductions in the administrative staff and in materials and supplies.

More than 300 teachers attended the board meeting last Thursday to protest the cutback of 50 teachers. the teachers, in a resolution, asked the board to reexamine the 1976-77 budget projections and priorities and to consider "every possibility other than terminating current nontenured teachers and increasing class size."

The teachers' union presented its own analysis of the district's finances and asked the board to have the Illinois Office of Education verify their figures.

"WE WANTED someone fairly impartial, who also knew about school budgets," said Hugh Brady, an officer of the teachers union.

In their resolution the teachers also objected to the rating scale used to determine which teachers would be fired.

The teachers asked the board to provide a hearing for any of the fired teachers who feel their rating was unjust or in error.

The faculty council also asked the board to establish a rehiring policy for any teacher honorably dismissed, and to consider the elimination of additional administrative personnel rather than cutting teachers.

Board Pres. Kenneth Rodeck Thursday said the board has not responded to the teachers' requests, other than calling for the Illinois Office of Education budget analysis.

Finance panel rejects request for coordinator

without a coordinator. If the board continues to ignore these needs of seniors, we as a commission can do no more," Gianopulos said.

MRS. SCHROEDER said she voted in favor of the request for a coordinator because of the high cost of the social service programs now being funded by the village.

"If we're going to get into more and more social services, we need to get someone with expertise to do the coordinating and evaluating. We don't really have anybody on our staff with a background in social services," she said.

Palmatier and Bettman said they opposed the request because it would duplicate services already provided by Wheeling Township. They also questioned whether the same person could be qualified to handle both groups.

"It would be like taking care of apples and oranges because the agespread is so wide. It would take a very unique person," Bettman said.

He said he would consider approving hiring a part-time coordinator for the senior citizens commission, but said he questioned whether senior citizens want a full-time person hired.

GIANOPULOS SAID he didn't see any "appropriate or rational" reasons for turning down the request.

"I don't see any of the services I outlined as first-year goals being done now by the township for Arlington Heights," he said.

In other action, the finance committee approved giving $5,000 to the Civil Defense agency to assit in paying for equipment repairs, establish a tornado watch network and cover relocation costs.

The committee also agreed to give the Arlington Beautification Council $1,000 in fiscal year 1976-77 to pay for shrubbery to be planted around the new train station scheduled to be built.

Court backs village in zoning case

A Cook County Circuit Court judge has upheld the Village of Arlington Heights' decision to not rezone two parcels on Central Road that would have allowed Brian Properties to build four office buildings there.

Judge Arthur Dunn issued the decision last week, rejecting Brian Properties' suit against the village.

Jack B. Whisler, one of the owners of the property, said Thursday he is considering appealing the decision.

The suit stemmed from the village board's decision made in May 1974 not to rezone the two parcels between Pine and Haddow on the south side of Central Road from residential commercial use.

The Brian Properties proposal to construct four colonial-style office buildings, to be known as Williamsburg Court, was approved by the village's plan commission, but a petition campaign against the plan was then staged by homeowners in the area.

Hobby exhibit slated at U.S. Post office

An exhibit of the hobbies of postal employes will be on display March 22 through Easter at the Arlington Heights Post Office.

Included in the exhibit will be examples of ceramics, needlework, coin and stamp collections and decoupage.

without a coordinator. If the board continues to ignore these needs of seniors, we as a commission can do no more," Gianopulos said.

MRS. SCHROEDER said she voted in favor of the request for a coordinator because of the high cost of the social service programs now being funded by the village.

"If we're going to get into more and more social services, we need to get someone with expertise to do the coordinating and evaluating. We don't really have anybody on our staff with a background in social services," she said.

Palmatier and Bettman said they opposed the request because it would duplicate services already provided by Wheeling Township. They also questioned whether the same person could be qualified to handle both groups.

"It would be like taking care of apples and oranges because the age-spread is so wide. It would take a very unique person," Bettman said.

He said he would consider approving hiring a part-time coordinator for the senior citizens commission, but said he questioned whether senior citizens want a full-time person hired.

GIANOPULOS SAID he didn't see any "appropriate or rational" reasons for turning down the request.

"I don't see any of the services I outlined as first-year goals being done now by the township for Arlington Heights," he said.

In other action, the finance committee approved giving $5,000 to the Civil Defense agency to assit in paying for equipment repairs, establish a tornado watch network and cover relocation costs.

The committee also agreed to give the Arlington Beautification Council $1,000 in fiscal year 1976-77 to pay for shrubbery to be planted around the new train station scheduled to be built.

Court backs village in zoning case

A Cook County Circuit Court judge has upheld the Village of Arlington Heights' decision to not rezone two parcels on Central Road that would have allowed Brian Properties to build four office buildings there.

Judge Arthur Dunn issued the decision last week, rejecting Brian Properties' suit against the village.

Jack B. Whisler, one of the owners of the property, said Thursday he is considering appealing the decision.

The suit stemmed from the village board's decision made in May 1974 not to rezone the two parcels between Pine and Haddow on the south side of Central Road from residential commercial use.

The Brian Properties proposal to construct four colonial-style office buildings, to be known as Williamsburg Court, was approved by the village's plan commission, but a petition campaign against the plan was then staged by homeowners in the area.

Hobby exhibit slated at U.S. Post office

An exhibit of the hobbies of postal employes will be on display March 22 through Easter at the Arlington Heights Post Office.

Included in the exhibit will be examples of ceramics, needlework, coin and stamp collections and decoupage.

Independent judges win

'Daley suffers setback in suburbs'

by WANDALYN RICE

The forces of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley suffered a major defeat in their attempt to infiltrate the suburbs in Tuesday's primary, New Trier Township Democratic Committeeman Lynn Williams said Thursday.

Williams cited the apparent victories of independent Supreme Court candidates James A. Dooley and William G. Clark over Daley-backed candidates as evidence of the suburban repudiation of Daley.

With the unofficial returns still incomplete, Clark was defeating his Daley-backed opponent Henry Dieringer by more than 80,000 votes, with 54,000 votes of his lead coming from the suburbs. Dooley was running 14,000 votes ahead of Joseph Power in the race for the other Supreme Court seat.

Williams said in New Trier Township, where Daley-backed Democratic Clubs were working for Power and Dieringer while Williams' independent Democratic organization worked for Clark and Dooley, voters cast ballots for the two independent candidates by margins ranging from 5 to 1 to 10 to 1 in selected precincts.

"I think they (the clubs) will need to learn that the number of enthusiastic Daley supporters in the suburbs is very limited," Williams said. "I regard the vote figures as an enthusiastic endorsement of the independent organization."

Williams organization was the target of the Daley-backed clubs in a move considered the first major effort by Daley to extend his influence to the suburbs. Daley personally attended the opening of the clubs' headquarters Feb. 21, his first visit to the suburbs in memory.

Williams said that in addition to the big win for the independent Supreme Court candidates, other returns from New Trier Township will indicate that the independent organization is substantially stronger than the clubs.

In the gubernatorial race, where both the independent organization and the clubs were backing Sec. of State Michael Howlett, Williams said, Howlett won 69 per cent of the vote in the township, the second highest plurality he won in any suburban township.

In the lieutenant governor's race, however, Howlett's running mate Neil Hartigan won 58 per cent of the vote, his second lowest plurality of any suburban township, Williams said. The clubs were backing Hartigan, while Williams' organization supported his opponent, Joanne Alter.

Williams said the clubs had the poor showing even though Chicago city workers were imported into the township to canvass precincts and act as poll watchers. The city workers, he said, had a counterproductive impact. "They would call on a voter who would call me and ask how to vote against them," he said.

In 12th District race

Fifth delegate seat in question

Four delegates to the Democratic National Convention pledged to Jimmy Carter appear to be almost certain victors in the Tuesday delegate election in the 12th Congressional District, with the fifth delegate seat still in doubt.

State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, Lucille "Jackie" Gallagher, Steven Maddock and Robert Johnston all have enough votes in preliminary returns to indicate they have been elected.

However, the fifth delegate spot remains in doubt, with party leaders in the 12th District saying it will be between the fifth Carter delegate, Gwen Martin; Schaumburg Township Committeeman John Morrissey; or Herbert "Hub" Stern, Lake County Democratic Chairman.

To add to the confusion, the National Election Service, which furnishes returns to United Press International, Thursday awarded the fifth spot to a delegate pledged to Gov. Daniel Walker, Dennis Dunn of Libertyville.

NES reported Dunn leading the delegate race with 13,892 votes, a figure which is almost certainly a computer error since Dunn polled only 565 votes in the Lake County part of the 12th Congressional District, which produces about 40 per cent of the district's vote.

Final returns from the four Northwest suburban townships which make up the Cook County portion of the 12th District will be necessary to resolve the race for the fifth spot. Those returns are expected to be ready next week.

Renovation verdict pending for Oak Forest Hospital

The Cook County Board will decide within the next week how much to spend to renovate Oak Forest Hospital, the county's nursing home-rehabilitation center, to bring it into compliance with federal regulations.

County board members agreed to meet within the next week on the subject. following a day-long meeting with officials of the county hospital governing commission and state and federal health officials.

Board members were told estimates for the renovation total about $23 million, including $10 million to upgrade utilities at the facility and $13 million to convert it from wards to four-bed rooms and make other changes to meet federal requirements.

Following the meeting, County Comr. Carl Hansen of Elk Grove Township said he is upset because federal officials have made regulations for the hospital without any idea what the cost would be.

"We have veteran's hospitals that aren't subject to HEW (U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare) rules because they don't get Medicaid and Medicare money that have 20-and 30-bed wards and yet HEW says other hospitals have to have four-bed rooms and yet it's all the federal government," Hansen said.

Hansen said he is also concerned because even if the county approves the changes, "We have no guarantee the rules won't change."

Spy linked to Ford, Reagan plots

Federal investigators have been told a Cuban spy served as an adivser to a San Francisco terrorist group and aided in plans to assassinate President Ford and GOP challenger Ronald Reagan the Chicago Tribune said Thursday.

The newspaper reported earlier an underground group had been plotting to kill Ford and Reagan at the GOP National Convention in Kansas City.

The Justice Dept. said the report if borne out would mark the first direct connection between the Cuban spy network and terrorist groups operating on American soil.

In a copyrighted dispatch from San Francisco by Ronald Kozol the paper said Gregg Daniel Adornetto, 27, a terrorist turned informant told federal agents that a Cuban spy codenamed "Andes Gomez" was adviser to the Emiliano Zapata Unit, a terrorist group which has claimed credit for a dozen bombings.

Illinois briefs

Gas prices drop in state

The average gasoline prices dropped one half to one cent this week in downstate and Chicago-area stations surveyed by the Chicago Motor Club.

Despite the good news an industry specialist said competition was forcing dealers from the market and prices were bound to go up again.

The motor club said the average price of a gallon of regular gasoline in Chicago and Cook County dropped to 58.9 cents, the lowest since last June and down a half cent from two weeks ago. Premium gasoline averaged 64 cents, down almost a penny from the last report.

The club found a price spread of 10 cents per gallon on regular and premium gasoline in the stations surveyed.

Court rules for addicts

The Illinois Supreme Court said Thursday drug addicts who commit simple robbery are entitled to get drug treatment under state law but not those who commit armed robbery.

Cook County prosecutors had argued that even those who don't use guns during a robbery should not be allowed to take part in state drug programs. They said simple robbery — not just armed robbery — is a "crime of violence" for which Dangerous Drug Abuse Act funds may not be used.

The court, however, said there is a differenct between the two crimes in the application of the drug treatment law.

YOGI AMRIT DESAI

to Yogi Desai.

THAT'S WHAT THEY did best. Listen and observe. The vast majority became entranced with Yogi Desai's eyes. They are so strong and secure. They never waver.

You look into those eyes and are reminded of staring into the ocean on the calmest night, always knowing there will never be a ripple.

If some were not total believers in Yogi Desai before he came to them Wednesday evening, then new followers were won in a few short hours.

Jim and Christina White plus Gary Weiss, two other people, two dogs and one cat share a farm in northern Arlington Heights. Jim, Tina and Gary are heavy into yoga.

GARY ANNUALLY VISITS the Himalayan Institute. He teaches yoga to retarded children at the Ira Rupley School in Elk Grove Village. Gary came early to Monica's home.

"It's important for a yoga teacher like myself to see what kind of vibrations I get," Gary said as Yogi Amrit Desai came into Monika Moeller's home.

Two hours later, Gary Weiss was not disappointed. He and Tina asked many questions. It was good conversation with the yoga master.

"He's classy. He comes off as being polished," Gary said. "If you can classify gurus as being polished or not, then he'd be elite."

Today

Mike Klein's people

Tina disagreed. Polished was not the word. She found him polite, unassuming and humble. We talked about how Gopi got Yogi Desai's dinner of barley, egg plant, raisins, salad and muffins.

YOGI DESAI IS not one to be very forceful. Not in the mundane matters.

"From what I've seen, all gurus are that way," Tina explained. "None of them are very comfortable in social situations. They always have someone with to guide them."

As Tina said it best, "They're never aggressive people who say, 'When's it time to eat, folks? Chow time!' "

I asked whether anyone could sum up Yogi Amrit Desai's presence in three words or less.

Tina spurt forward with, "Great deal of power." She thought a few moments longer and revised that to, "Self-contained power and awareness."

IT DID NOT come easily for Gary. He finally settled on "Power." Jim White went with, "Alive and real."

Then I asked Monika Moeller, who began following Yogi Amrit Desai three years ago. She has twice visited his Ashram in Pennsylvania.

"Peaceful and radiant," said Monica.

"Did you see the radiance coming from his eyes?" she asked. "Did you look into them? Very radiant."

I asked how she had gotten involved. Monika talked about a period of unhappiness in her life. Yogi Amrit Desai came to her in dreams, long before she had seen Ashram.

"IT'S USUALLY SAID in yoga that when the student is ready, the guru will come to him," Monika said.

"I believe I have him as a guru because he teaches love and that's what I need, to learn to love."

She talked a bit longer about depression which had been the cause of severe unhappiness. All that is changed now. Monika said a person learns from the "trial periods in your life."

And she began to learn from Yogi Amrit Desai.

"I do believe there are saints on this earth," Monika said, "and he's one of them."

The way we see it

'Responsible' choices made

"Responsible" is the best word to categorize how Illinois voters chose their Presidential nominees Tuesday.

In selecting Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter in preference primaries, voters overwhelmingly took a moderate path.

Ford's victory represents a clear victory of substance over style. Ford has not been the most innovative President during his brief term, but he has held the nation together, and steered it forward, during some hard times.

Although we have disagreed with him on many programs, on balance he has been a stable and constructive President. His opponent offered the people of Illinois little beyond the rhetoric of tearing down the federal government. The choice between the two men was an easy one for voters to make.

Clearly, Reagan's campaign is faltering; it has shown little broad-based appeal in the first four primaries. Even though Reagan's backers hope for an upturn in Southern and Southwestern states, we doubt that he is any longer a serious candidate for the top of the ticket.

We applaud the nomination of Carter for different reasons. We believe his triumph slows to a crawl the campaign of fellow Southerner George Wallace, who has not shown the needed qualifications to lead our nation.

It is unfortunate that Morris Udall and Henry Jackson, the two other leading Democratic candidates, skipped the Illinois race. Their presence would have given Democrats more of a choice in selecting a candidate, and the Illinois vote would have had greater national influence.

But even if we didn't have the full field from which to choose, Illinois' role in trimming the overcrowded field for the April and May primaries was important. In voting Tuesday, we gave two of the better candidates a needed boost.

Common sense need

At least eight of the 11 elementary school districts in the Northwest suburbs have cut back the number of teaching positions for next fall — a move that has drawn considerable criticism from parents and teachers.

All of the districts involved are either operating at a deficit or projecting substantial deficits in the years ahead. The districts are also losing enrollment annually, resulting in a loss of state aid funding.

The bulk of the criticism concerning teacher cuts comes from those most directly involved — the teachers.

Several local union leaders have said they unequivocally object to cutbacks because of declining enrollment and would prefer to see smaller class sizes and improved programs.

Although we can understand the problems teachers face in today's job market, it is unreasonable to expect a school board to maintain a staff larger than necessary.

We too would like to see small class sizes, new and creative programs. We wish our school districts were in the financial position to take advantage of lower enrollments. But they simply are not.

Districts which are not now operating at a deficit because of current cash surpluses but which have projected red ink budgets in the next few years are being criticized for making cutbacks prematurely.

We would prefer to see these districts reduce staff in proportion to their declining enrollment now and continue to do so each year. It is foolhardy to wait until the district is in a crisis and the school board is forced into making drastic cuts, not only in staff but programs.

We see our local school boards generally acting with common sense in solving their enrollment and budget problems. We hope teachers and parents react with common sense as well.

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Friday, March 19, the 79th day of 1976 with 287 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury and Venus.

The evening stars are Mars, Saturn and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Pisces.

Famed Scottish explorer David Livingstone was born March 19, 1813.

On this day in history:

• In 1906, the new Hotel Traymore in Atlantic City, N.J., published this advertisement: "25 private baths, capacity 450."

• In 1917, the U. S. Supreme Court ruled that the Adamson Act was constitutional. It provided for an eight-hour work day on American railroads.

• In 1920, the Versailles Treaty establishing the League of Nations was rejected by the U. S. Senate.

• In 1942, all men in the United States between the ages of 45 and 64 — about 13 million — were ordered to register with draft boards for non-military duty.

A thought for the day: Three-time presidential nominee William Jennings Bryan, born on this day in 1860, once said, "The humblest of all the land, when clad in the armor of a righteous cause, is stronger than all the hosts of error."

For the past several years and in particular the last couple of months, Paddock Publications has by its editorials taken great interest in local school district financing. Paddock has consistently called for the school districts to economize, operate within a balanced budget and provide a quality education. Like "motherhood and apple pie," it would be difficult, if not impossible, to argue with such a position.

In an editorial dated February 18, The Herald reported that Dist. 25 is projecting a $3.9 million deficit by 1984; Dist. 26, bankrupt by 1977; $1 million deficit in Dist. 21, and $2 million deficit in Dist. 15 and Dist. 59 by next year. I also understand that High School Dist. 214, although quite solvent now, is projecting a $20 million deficit in the next four years.

The same editorial lauded Dist. 63 for making budget cuts totalling $800,000 by increasing book rentals, lunch fees and decreasing teaching, custodial and secretarial staffs in order to overcome a forecasted $500,000 deficit. Again, I agree with the approach Dist. 63 has taken to solve its financial problems, but "fat trimming" can only go so far before the educational program is seriously affected.

Dist. 59 has formed a citizens' committee to study the possibility of forming a unit school district in hopes of finding improvements in education and a long-term solution to its own financial responsibilities, the same responsibilities which face other districts in this area. Since the inception of this study, High School Dist. 214, Dist. 21, Dist. 23 and Paddock Publications have taken a position opposing the formation of a unit district by Dist. 59. The education association of Dist. 214 has called upon the teachers of the district to oppose the formation of a unit district by writing the local press and contacting the voters within Dist. 59.

Perhaps it is time that common sense and reason come into play. The formation of a unit district first requires that a committee of 10 citizens be formed and a petition of signatures from at least 200 voters be submitted to the county superintendent of schools. To date, neither of these steps has been taken. Rather, a study is being conducted to determine the educational and financial advantages, if any, in forming a unit district, as well as the effect that such a move might have on surrounding districts.

IT SEEMS INCREDIBLE that so many people directly involved in education would be opposed to Dist. 59's search for information. What is education if it is not the quest of knowledge? Perhaps Dist. 59's opponents might do well to investigate a similar move rather than, based on limited, questionable information, oppose a move which as yet has not been made.

High School Dist. 214 has repeatedly stated that if Dist. 59 were to form a unit, it would lose $1.5 million a year in state aid and $6 million in assets, including two high schools. This "may" be true; the committee has not as yet determined the validity of this statement, but if it is, it fails to mention that the two high schools would have to be purchased from Dist. 214 based on an independent evaluation of building, land and content. If we want to make decisions based on potentially "unreliable" figures, try this on for size. Dist. 59 would be assuming the responsibility to educate approximately 5,000 high school students. Based on Dist. 214's "tuition" of approximately $2,000 per student, Dist. 214 would be giving up $7.5 million in state aid and assets, but saving $10 million in expenses.

Lastly, if after the study is completed and a move is made to form a unit district, should opponents still feel as they do now the state provides that a hearing must be held before the county superintendent of schools at which opponents can voice objections. Upon completion of the hearing, the results are then forwarded to the state superintendent of schools. If the petition meets his satisfaction, he can then instruct the county superintendent to call for a referendum.

Now is not the time for opposition. Reasonable citizens should be exchanging honest information with the hope of finding solutions to mutual problems, which are in the best interest of the students and taxpayers of all areas concerned.

Thomas R. Guy
Elk Grove Village

'Give us the facts, not a run-around'

My humble apology to the Dist. 54 board for asking questions at the board meeting regarding cutbacks for our elementary schools.

Seems little satisfactory response has been given to the concerned people who stood up and repeatedly asked for particulars of your referendum request.

The board needs to specify as to why and how much will be involved; not just black and white of a cutback of extra sports after school (how many children does it involve?) or by making our great resource learning centers dormant after we invested money in equipment. Are they beating around the bush??

People like myself, concerned taxpayers, want particulars. As a housewife, to manage the household economically you have to sacrifice extra benefits to all in the household, and it's pretty darn hard to make decisions. Therefore the district is now walking in the same shoes as a lot of us do nowadays.

The board should inform the gentlemen who addressed the group, "To go get five friends you know to go vote 'yes' and the referendum will be passed." Now I'll tell you, he will be dealing with five friends who do not know democracy in the United States, only if they run out and vote on his say-so. Most people will find out the facts before they vote on an issue. The American voter should use his education as a means to improve our community and country.

So, Mr. Schaible, don't give the public a run-around, give us facts — communicate, be more explicit as to our betterment. After all, we have your board working for our future America. Believe me, if I weren't concerned, I never would have attended the board's party at Keller last Tuesday night.

Go ahead, iron out your wash, give the nitty gritty, don't be hypothetical. The people who understand the facts will do their utmost to keep our school system operating as the very best.

Flo Gesiakowski
Schaumburg

'We're trying to tell public'

The administration has informed teachers and parents this week of budget cuts in School Dist. 62.

As members of the parent organizations of Dist. 62 we have been seeking information regarding the proposed budget cuts and their affect on our educational system.

There has been a decline in enrollment and subsequent loss of revenue to make cuts necessary.

We will NOT lose any of our special subjects such as art, music, gym, Spanish, learning disability or speech.

The following are proposed staff cuts: three permanent substitutes; 20 classroom teachers (K through 6); one physical education teacher; one Spanish teacher; one social worker; one speech therapist; two learning disability teachers; four nurses — to be replaced with aides who are trained as paramedics and a Des Plaines doctor retained as consultant; three guidance counselors — to be reassigned to classrooms and to be replaced with three psychological interns.

It is our feeling that the public should be honestly and unbiasedly informed and this is what we are trying to accomplish. We encourage all parents to seek information regarding the proposed budget cuts and proposed alternatives.

AMERICAN REVOLUTION BICENTENNIAL 1776-1976

Dateline 1776

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 19 — Until the danger of smallpox was eradicated, American soldiers were forbidden to enter Boston unless on duty. The army's quartermaster general estimated that the amount of booty left behind by the British amounted to 25,000 to 30,000 pounds sterling.

'Responsible' choices made

"Responsible" is the best word to categorize how Illinois voters chose their Presidential nominees Tuesday.

In selecting Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter in preference primaries, voters overwhelmingly took a moderate path.

Ford's victory represents a clear victory of substance over style. Ford has not been the most innovative President during his brief term, but he has held the nation together, and steered it forward, during some hard times.

Although we have disagreed with him on many programs, on balance he has been a stable and constructive President. His opponent offered the people of Illinois little beyond the rhetoric of tearing down the federal government. The choice between the two men was an easy one for voters to make.

Clearly, Reagan's campaign is faltering; it has shown little broad-based appeal in the first four primaries. Even though Reagan's backers hope for an upturn in Southern and Southwestern states, we doubt that he is any longer a serious candidate for the top of the ticket.

We applaud the nomination of Carter for different reasons. We believe his triumph slows to a crawl the campaign of fellow Southerner George Wallace, who has not shown the needed qualifications to lead our nation.

It is unfortunate that Morris Udall and Henry Jackson, the two other leading Democratic candidates, skipped the Illinois race. Their presence would have given Democrats more of a choice in selecting a candidate, and the Illinois vote would have had greater national influence.

But even if we didn't have the full field from which to choose, Illinois' role in trimming the overcrowded field for the April and May primaries was important. In voting Tuesday, we gave two of the better candidates a needed boost.

Common sense need

At least eight of the 11 elementary school districts in the Northwest suburbs have cut back the number of teaching positions for next fall — a move that has drawn considerable criticism from parents and teachers.

All of the districts involved are either operating at a deficit or projecting substantial deficits in the years ahead. The districts are also losing enrollment annually, resulting in a loss of state aid funding.

The bulk of the criticism concerning teacher cuts comes from those most directly involved — the teachers.

Several local union leaders have said they unequivocally object to cutbacks because of declining enrollment and would prefer to see smaller class sizes and improved programs.

Although we can understand the problems teachers face in today's job market, it is unreasonable to expect a school board to maintain a staff larger than necessary.

We too would like to see small class sizes, new and creative programs. We wish our school districts were in the financial position to take advantage of lower enrollments. But they simply are not.

Districts which are not now operating at a deficit because of current cash surpluses but which have projected red ink budgets in the next few years are being criticized for making cutbacks prematurely.

We would prefer to see these districts reduce staff in proportion to their declining enrollment now and continue to do so each year. It is foolhardy to wait until the district is in a crisis and the school board is forced into making drastic cuts, not only in staff but programs.

We see our local school boards generally acting with common sense in solving their enrollment and budget problems. We hope teachers and parents react with common sense as well.

For the past several years and in particular the last couple of months, Paddock Publications has by its editorials taken great interest in local school district financing. Paddock has consistently called for the school districts to economize, operate within a balanced budget and provide a quality education. Like "motherhood and apple pie," it would be difficult, if not impossible, to argue with such a position.

In an editorial dated February 18, The Herald reported that Dist. 25 is projecting a $3.9 million deficit by 1984; Dist. 26, bankrupt by 1977; $1 million deficit in Dist. 21, and $2 million deficit in Dist. 15 and Dist. 59 by next year. I also understand that High School Dist. 214, although quite solvent now, is projecting a $20 million deficit in the next four years.

The same editorial lauded Dist. 63 for making budget cuts totalling $800,000 by increasing book rentals, lunch fees and decreasing teaching, custodial and secretarial staffs in order to overcome a forecasted $500,000 deficit. Again, I agree with the approach Dist. 63 has taken to solve its financial problems, but "fat trimming" can only go so far before the educational program is seriously affected.

Dist. 59 has formed a citizens' committee to study the possibility of forming a unit school district in hopes of finding improvements in education and a long-term solution to its own financial responsibilities, the same responsibilities which face other districts in this area. Since the inception of this study, High School Dist. 214, Dist. 21, Dist. 23 and Paddock Publications have taken a position opposing the formation of a unit district by Dist. 59. The education association of Dist. 214 has called upon the teachers of the district to oppose the formation of a unit district by writing the local press and contacting the voters within Dist. 59.

Perhaps it is time that common sense and reason come into play. The formation of a unit district first requires that a committee of 10 citizens be formed and a petition of signatures from at least 200 voters be submitted to the county superintendent of schools. To date, neither of these steps has been taken. Rather, a study is being conducted to determine the educational and financial advantages, if any, in forming a unit district, as well as the effect that such a move might have on surrounding districts.

IT SEEMS INCREDIBLE that so many people directly involved in education would be opposed to Dist. 59's search for information. What is education if it is not the quest of knowledge? Perhaps Dist. 59's opponents might do well to investigate a similar move rather than, based on limited, questionable information, oppose a move which as yet has not been made.

High School Dist. 214 has repeatedly stated that if Dist. 59 were to form a unit, it would lose $1.5 million a year in state aid and $6 million in assets, including two high schools. This "may" be true; the committee has not as yet determined the validity of this statement, but if it is, it fails to mention that the two high schools would have to be purchased from Dist. 214 based on an independent evaluation of building, land and content. If we want to make decisions based on potentially "unreliable" figures, try this on for size. Dist. 59 would be assuming the responsibility to educate approximately 5,000 high school students. Based on Dist. 214's "tuition" of approximately $2,000 per student, Dist. 214 would be giving up $7.5 million in state aid and assets, but saving $10 million in expenses.

Lastly, if after the study is completed and a move is made to form a unit district, should opponents still feel as they do now the state provides that a hearing must be held before the county superintendent of schools at which opponents can voice objections. Upon completion of the hearing, the results are then forwarded to the state superintendent of schools. If the petition meets his satisfaction, he can then instruct the county superintendent to call for a referendum.

Now is not the time for opposition. Reasonable citizens should be exchanging honest information with the hope of finding solutions to mutual problems, which are in the best interest of the students and taxpayers of all areas concerned.

'Give us the facts, not a run-around'

My humble apology to the Dist. 54 board for asking questions at the board meeting regarding cutbacks for our elementary schools.

Seems little satisfactory response has been given to the concerned people who stood up and repeatedly asked for particulars of your referendum request.

The board needs to specify as to why and how much will be involved; not just black and white of a cutback of extra sports after school (how many children does it involve?) or by making our great resource learning centers dormant after we invested money in equipment. Are they beating around the bush??

People like myself, concerned taxpayers, want particulars. As a housewife, to manage the household economically you have to sacrifice extra benefits to all in the household, and it's pretty darn hard to make decisions. Therefore the district is now walking in the same shoes as a lot of us do nowadays.

The board should inform the gentlemen who addressed the group, "To go get five friends you know to go vote 'yes' and the referendum will be passed." Now I'll tell you, he will be dealing with five friends who do not know democracy in the United States, only if they run out and vote on his say-so. Most people will find out the facts before they vote on an issue. The American voter should use his education as a means to improve our community and country.

So, Mr. Schaible, don't give the public a run-around, give us facts — communicate, be more explicit as to our betterment. After all, we have your board working for our future America. Believe me, if I weren't concerned, I never would have attended the board's party at Keller last Tuesday night.

Go ahead, iron out your wash, give the nitty gritty, don't be hypothetical. The people who understand the facts will do their utmost to keep our school system operating as the very best.

'We're trying to tell public'

The administration has informed teachers and parents this week of budget cuts in School Dist. 62.

As members of the parent organizations of Dist. 62 we have been seeking information regarding the proposed budget cuts and their affect on our educational system.

There has been a decline in enrollment and subsequent loss of revenue to make cuts necessary.

We will NOT lose any of our special subjects such as art, music, gym, Spanish, learning disability or speech.

The following are proposed staff cuts: three permanent substitutes; 20 classroom teachers (K through 6); one physical education teacher; one Spanish teacher; one social worker; one speech therapist; two learning disability teachers; four nurses — to be replaced with aides who are trained as paramedics and a Des Plaines doctor retained as consultant; three guidance counselors — to be reassigned to classrooms and to be replaced with three psychological interns.

It is our feeling that the public should be honestly and unbiasedly informed and this is what we are trying to accomplish. We encourage all parents to seek information regarding the proposed budget cuts and proposed alternatives.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices fell Thursday in dull trading on the New York Stock Exchange amid growing indications the stock market is headed for an extended period of consolidation following its unprecedented new year rally.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 2.52-point winner Wednesday, lost 6.14 points to 979.85. The blue-chip average has floundered since reaching a three-year high of 1,003.31 a week ago.

Other averages also slumped. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 0.41 to 100.45, the NYSE common stock index 0.21 to 53.70 and the average price of an NYSE common share 14 cents.

DECLINES TOPPED advances, 930 to 482, among the 1,846 issues crossing the tape. The 434 unchanged issues reflected investor uncertainty about the course of the market.

Volume totaled 20,330,000 shares, down from the 26,190,000 traded Wednesday and sharply below the 30-million-share daily average of January and February.

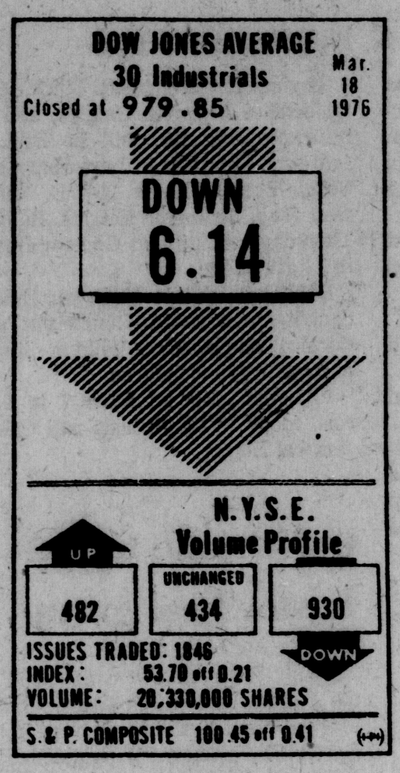
The Commerce Department's report of a 1.4 per cent slump in last week's retail sales killed a mild afternoon rally attempt that appeared to have been triggered by Sears Roebuck's report of sharply higher fourth quarter earnings.

Most analysts said the market was consolidating the gains it made in the first two months of the year. They said investors appeared to be turning their attention to bonds and short-term money instruments for better returns.

ANACONDA TOPPED the Big Board actives, closing unchanged at 26 on 313,000 shares. Anaconda said it would not oppose Atlantic Richfield's $27-a-share tender offer for up to six million Anaconda shares. Arco gained 2 3/8 to 85 1/8.

Gulf Oil was the second most active Big Board issue, off 3/8 to 22¾ on 297,300 shares. The company denied reports that Angola has nationalized its Cabinda Gulf Oil Co. unit. Citicorp was the third most active issue, up 1 to 34¼ on 277,200 shares.

Prices closed lower in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased by five cents. Volume totaled 3,280,000 shares, compared with 4,010,000 traded Wednesday.



More families say they'll buy cars

Consumers' confidence and their plans to buy new cars increased during February, reported the Conference Board, a New York-based business organization.

The survey, released Thursday, shows some 10.7 per cent of the participating families plan to buy a new or used car within the coming six months. The nine-year record level compares to 7.5 per cent in December 1975.

Some 10,000 U.S. families were included in the study conducted by National Family Opinion Inc.

"LATEST CONSUMER intentions, along with reports from new car showrooms, strongly suggest that America's long romance with the automobile is far from over," said Fabian Linden, director of consumer research for the board. "Certainly if consumers fulfill their present intentions, we are in for a stunning auto year in 1976."

The board's consumer confidence index rose to 93.3 during February, more than 6 points higher than the December results. The board uses the 1969-1970 year as the base year of 100 points. A buying plans index rose to 126.3 points compared to 108.7 points at the end of 1975.

More than 22 per cent of the families included in the survey predict employment prospects will improve during the next six months. The figure compares to 20 per cent the previous survey. Thirty-two per cent of the survey participants expect their personal income to rise, compared to 28 per cent in the last two months of 1975. The rate is the highest in seven years.

The state of the economy is labeled "good" by 22 per cent of the families surveyed compared to 19 per cent during December. Although the results marked the first time "good" ratings outnumbered "bad" since mid-1974, 39 per cent continue to report jobs are "hard to get."

A DROP IN PLANS to buy major appliances was recorded, from 33 per cent in December to 32 per cent in February. Washington machines, clothes dryers and vacuum cleaners were affected by the decline. Small gains were reported for black-and-white television sets and ranges.

A slight gain in home buying plans was reported. Four per cent of the participants said they will buy a home in the next six months compared to 3.7 per cent in December. A 2 per cent rate was reported one year earlier.

Consumers' vacation plans declined to 46 per cent from 49 per cent in December. The proportion of families planning to visit a foreign country dipped to 3.9 per cent from the previous 4.5 per cent reading. Plans to travel by airplane rose to 11.1 per cent from 10.9 per cent during December.

Unnecessary operations topic of Blue Cross study

An experimental program announced by Blue Cross may shed some light on the amount of unnecessary surgery in the United States.

Under terms of the trial, hand-picked patients will be able to get a second opinion from an approved surgeon before going ahead with an elective nonemergency operation ordered by the first doctor.

Blue Cross officials say it will take six months to a year before they will be able to draw any conclusions about the amount of unecessary surgery.

THE THEORY behind the program is to test the idea that two doctors are better than one in deciding if an operation is necessary.

A recent Congressional subcommittee report said that doctors in the United States perform 2.4 million unnecessary operation a year, resulting in 11,900 needless deaths.

In a report, "Surgery in the United States," a joint committee of the American College of Surgeons and the American Surgical Society recommended preoperative consultations if a surgeon regularly carries out operations for which there is little justification by clinical, X-ray or laboratory study.

The report also recommended periodic reassessment of fitness, performance and competence of doctors authorized by hospitals to use the surgical suite.

unless you're moving to Carlisle Cove in Schaumburg

Whether you have lived in your present home 32 years or just 2 years, the memories that you leave behind make moving difficult.

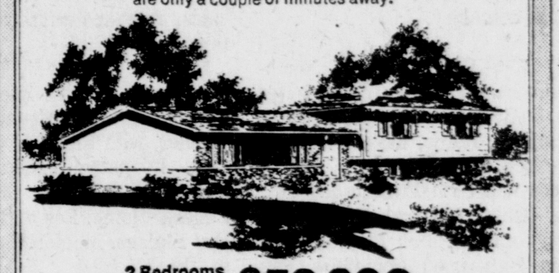
Carlisle Cove can't replace these memories, but it can be the beginning of a whole new way of life with many pleasant memories for the future.

Carlisle Cove offers you the environment and home that you are looking for.

Located in beautiful Schaumburg, the new home sites are part of an already mature area of homes. They are adjacent to a 20 acre park which includes 3 swimming pools (one Olympic sized with a 15' diving tower), lighted tennis courts, baseball diamond and swings.

The homes are soundly built by one of Chicago's most respected builders, who backs his construction with the HOW (Home Owners Warranty) Program, protecting your home for 10 years against any major defects. Included are many of the "little" extra features you are looking for like: walk-in closets, large family rooms, separate dining rooms, large kitchens and 2-car garages. The exteriors are face brick with your choice of siding on fully seeded lots.

Woodfield shopping is less than 10 minutes away and there is a large local center within walking distance. An elementary school is on the property and bus service is provided to the Jr. and Sr. Highs. Major roadways and the commuter trains are only a couple of minutes away.



3 Bedrooms from $53,600

HOW

Unnecessary operations topic of Blue Cross study

An experimental program announced by Blue Cross may shed some light on the amount of unnecessary surgery in the United States.

Under terms of the trial, hand-picked patients will be able to get a second opinion from an approved surgeon before going ahead with an elective nonemergency operation ordered by the first doctor.

Blue Cross officials say it will take six months to a year before they will be able to draw any conclusions about the amount of unecessary surgery.

THE THEORY behind the program is to test the idea that two doctors are better than one in deciding if an operation is necessary.

A recent Congressional subcommittee report said that doctors in the United States perform 2.4 million unnecessary operation a year, resulting in 11,900 needless deaths.

In a report, "Surgery in the United States," a joint committee of the American College of Surgeons and the American Surgical Society recommended preoperative consultations if a surgeon regularly carries out operations for which there is little justification by clinical, X-ray or laboratory study.

The report also recommended periodic reassessment of fitness, performance and competence of doctors authorized by hospitals to use the surgical suite.

Backyard of Lincolnshire

A mall with personality

The Backyard of Lincolnshire proves one thing about shopping centers. A mall doesn't have to be big, noisy and impersonal to be a success.

Opened in 1974, the Backyard, located at Routes 22 and 21 in Lincolnshire, is an unusual concept in merchandising. There are 21 specialty shops featuring needlework, hobbies, toys and imported gifts — even a shop that offers quilting lessons. Chain stores are discouraged.

The Backyard also houses four restaurants and a pastry shop, open for lunch and dinner. On weekends the center of the mall becomes a cocktail lounge as patrons dance to music by a variety of live bands. Even the shop owners have been known to stay open after hours for those who want to browse between dances. Or you can sit on benches overlooking the dance floor and just enjoy the music. Admission is the price of drinks.

The Backyard is a good place to browse. Each store is individual, and the mall is a cheerful place, built under a giant skylight. After a morning of window shopping, enjoy a leisurely lunch at Benihana of Tokyo, My Apartment, Steak Chalet or Cart and Cocktail. For dessert, there's the French Confection on the lower level of the mall.

BENIHANA OF TOKYO: This well-known restaurant chain, a favorite in Japan, is famous for Japanese cuisine cooked at your table. If you don't like being seated with strangers, it's best to visit Benihana with a group of eight.

The atmosphere is strictly Oriental with waitresses appropriately dressed in kimonos. The best part of the meal is watching the chef prepare your lunch. He makes music with his knife as he chops shrimps and Oriental vegetables down to size. He flourishes salt and pepper shakers as a conductor does his baton.

The lunch menu is limited to hibachi dressing made up of some 20 ingredients including ginger, was not to my taste, though the steak was cooked, as if outdoors on the grill, to medium rare perfection. It came with fresh sliced, sauteed mushrooms, zucchini, bean sprouts and onions, also cooked tableside. A tasty bowl of fried rice accompanied each entree.

My friend ordered the onion soup, $1, a light consomme highlighted with chopped green onions and mushchicken, $3.50; sukiyaki steak, $4; hibachi steak, $4.75; and for those with less of a taste for the Oriental, filet mignon, $4.75. All entrees include Japanese-prepared vegetables. Japanese green tea is also offered.

On a recent visit, I ordered Benihana's Special Lunch, a combination of hibachi steak, vegetables and the Benihana salad bowl, $5.25. I began with an appetizer of hibachi shrimps, good, but a surprisingly small portion for $1.50.

The salad, served with an Oriental rooms. Her hibachi chicken was extremely good although she flinched at watching the raw chicken cooked in front of her.

The meal at Benihana is enjoyable and portions are reasonable. No doubt you'll be ready for dessert. On the menu are ice cream, sherbet, mandarin orange and melon. Dinner entrees are similar to the lunch fare, only slightly more expensive.

MY APARTMENT: The restaurant is set away from the mall so patrons are not bothered by shoppers. Decorated as an apartment with bookshelves, wall hangings, padded chairs and soft lighting, My Apartment offers an intimate place to dine. Each table is separated by partitions, creating an atmosphere conducive to a leisurely meal and good conversation.

The menu includes traditional luncheon fare with roast beef, $3.25; sirloin burger, $2.50; sirloin steak, $4.25; club sandwich, $2.75; and chef's salad, $2.95. The entrees are served with soup, salad, French fries or potato chips. There is a low-calorie plate for the diet conscious and specials each day that often include crepes.

The service is pleasant. Water glasses and coffee cups are filled promptly. A loaf of white bread with sesame seeds comes to the table immediately, although on our visit the loaf was only lukewarm and cooled off quickly.

I ordered sirloin steak which was deliciously tender, served with crisp French fries. Soup of the day was corn chowder. I was disappointed, however, that my steak was not cooked at the grate in the center of each table. The waitress informed me the grates are used only at dinner.

My friend ordered the roast baron of beef, which was cooked a little too rare to her liking but still tasty. The portion was more than ample for lunch.

Desserts are limited. We chose cheesecake, $1. The slices were large and the cheesecake light and fluffy, though we discovered a slight after-taste as if the cheesecake was left uncovered in the refrigerator too long.

Dinner is more elaborate and, of course, more expensive at My Apartment. Appetizers include escargot, $3.25; Gulf shrimp in a sauce, $2.75; and lobster chunks in melted butter with French bread for dipping, $3.50. Entrees vary from lobster tails and crab legs to steaks, prime rib and marinated tenderloin en brochette.

STEAK CHALET: This restaurant is fashioned after a Swiss chalet, small and private with booths and a friendly fireplace. The Backyard recommends the room for private parties.

The restaurant started out specializing in fondue but subsequent managers have changed the menu to include more traditional dinner fare. The lunch menu in the chalet is the same as My Apartment.

Dinner includes fried chicken, $4.75; chopped sirloin steak, $5.25; roast duckling, $8.50; and a variety of steaks and crab legs. Specialty of the house is a dessert of chocolate fondue served with fresh fruit, cake and marshmallow, $3.95.

CART AND COCKTAIL: Strictly for the lunch crowd, this is the only restaurant open at the mall on Mondays. Fare is the same as My Apartment but includes a salad bar. Cart and Cocktail, in the center of the mall and surrounded by shops, becomes the cocktail lounge and dance floor on weekends.

THE FRENCH CONFECTION: Whether visiting the Backyard for lunch or just to shop, don't miss this tiny dessert cafe run by a Greek who used to sell gyros in Chicago.

Specialties of the house are deliciously fattening concoctions guaranteed to satisfy even the most demanding sweet tooth. The menu includes such delectables as napoleons, baklava, eclaires, sundaes and other ice cream creations. Candy and licorice are also plentiful.

Not in a very adventurous mood, I ordered the banana split, $1.45, which was what you'd expect but too large to finish. The price is most reasonable compared to other ice cream shops.

My friend, being slightly more curious, ordered the hot custard pie a la mode at $1.15. She said it was delicious, agreeing with the Greeks who eat the pie for breakfast. In Athens, the owner of the French Confection told us, they sell the custard pies at stands like they sell hot dogs here.

Each of the Backyard restaurants has its own hours, so patrons should call ahead before planning lunch or dinner at the mall.

'Gramp' poignant picture of a family facing death

by TOM WELLMAN

(A book review)

Life and death, death and life. In the way in which we've built our orderly and logical world, there's little in common between these two qualities. We exalt "life" — and we are shocked when death touches our inner circle of friends and relatives.

But at single moments, life and death do have a great deal in common. If that sounds like an unspeakable proposition, you owe it to yourself to look into a just-published book called "Gramp" by Mark and Dan Jury (Grossman $5.95).

The book will move you deeply, and it may disturb you. But above all else it will provide new understanding that there can be a powerful sense of life in the process we've come to know as death.

The two photographs on the back cover are the first clue that this is far from a bloodless, philosophical tract on death. In the left-hand picture is Frank Tugend, a firm-jawed middle-aged man who is holding his baby grandson, Dan Jury, in his arms. The picture was taken 22 years ago.

In the right-hand picture, Dan Jury has grown to maturity, and he is holding his aged grandfather tenderly in his arms. It is 1974, and within 12 months Frank Tugend will be dead.

"GRAMP" IS the story of the death and life of an ordinary man without the pretensions of wealth, fame or social status. Frank Tugend was a coal miner who spent his life in the rolling hills near Scranton, Pa. He went to work every day, reared a family and did what might be expected for a man in his station in life.

But in July 1970, the orderly and quiet life of Frank Tugend began to change. His memory failed, his mind drifted and his behavior became that of an eccentric. In simple terms, Gramp had become senile.

In five years he would be dead. But the slow process of his death was not to be shrouded like a dusty picture in a forgotten family album.

His grandsons are photographers, and they are good ones. In Frank Tugend's home, cameras were an everyday part of life, and the two young men set about the task of recording on film the last five years of their grandfather's life.

Frank Tugend and his grandson, 1954.

Dan Jury and his grandfather, 1974.

LIKE ANY conscientious photographers, Mark and Dan Jury did not compromise. Their chronicle began with Gramp wandering aimlessly and alone in the fields behind the family home. Physically Gramp had the weathered leanness of his earlier years, but his mind was lost in another world, far from home.

Later, the shadows lengthened. Gramp became thin and gaunt, and the gray stubble on his chin became more pronounced. He could not control his bowels, his face hollowed out and he stopped eating. Then, one day he handed his false teeth to his doctor and said, "Here, you take these. I won't be using them anymore."

Death came to Gramp as he stared lifelessly at the ceiling from his small mattress close to the floor. Suddenly his wasted presence was gone, and the room was empty. But left behind was the presence of emptiness for the family who loved and cared for him . . . with only a lasting sense of understanding about this man, this "tough old coal miner."

The Jurys' record of the death of Frank Tugend should not be dismissed as a grim and clinical account of how an old man's body dries up and dies. It is a story about the family who loved Gramp, even though they don't always enter camera range. Their presence is felt, and their story is told through the lenses of two men who deeply understood that Gramp was a special kind of person.

ALBERT CAMUS, the French existential philosopher, once wrote, "We may be idealistic, but we need what is tangible." That is one of the messages of this book, for it leaves behind something tangible about Gramp and the way his family loved him. His body may be gone, but we can at least touch a faithful recording of the meaning of the love he shared with his family.

"Gramp" is an outstanding photographic achievement about a family who would not let a member die in the sanitized obscurity of a modern hospital. But a critic cannot stop there. It must be understood that this is a painful book, for the death of any person, is a painful experience. For many of us the book is too horribly close to our own experiences, and we cannot pick it up without tears.

But for those who chose to read it, "Gramp" is a document that proves that the love of a family can make the universal experience of death a unifying and strengthening experience. Thanks to the words and photographs of Mark and Dan Jury, we've been left with a revealing portrait of the Tugend family and how they came to terms with the death of Gramp.

Vocalist turns from soul to pop, makes hit album

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

Good music transcends categorization and appeals to a wide variety of listeners. Unfortunately, too often a musician is stuck in a category and is overlooked by most listeners.

Ann Peebles, 28, is on the verge of becoming a star, mostly because the title song from her last album, "I Can't Stand the Rain," became a big hit and crossed over from the soul to the pop markets. In addition, another song from the album, "(You Keep Me) Hangin' On," was nominated for a Grammy Award.

As with many other black female vocalists, she started singing as a child in the church choir, which happened to be directed by her father. But the fervor found in her newest album, "Tellin' It" (Hi/London), has more inherent sexuality than religion.

PRODUCER WILLIE Mitchell's total musical control, as always, sets the stage with a heavy rhythm section and punctuating horns which often urge the singer on and sometimes coddle her. The rhythmic shuffle to "Stand By Woman" is particularly memorable, and the song has a good blend on horns and strings too.

Miss Peebles' singing is strong throughout, but she projects the most emotion on the slower, bluesy songs, such as "I Need Somebody." The album's disappointment is that she never really lets go on any song but sticks to a very controlled performance.

Other highlights are "Come To Mama" and "I Don't Lend My Man," which should be a single.

OTHER NEW releases include:

"The Leprechaun" by Chick Corea (Polydor). This is the first solo album since 1971 for the leader of the jazz/rock group Return to Forever. At one time, pianist Corea was only known to jazz fans, but his work with Miles Davis and then Return To Forever have broadened his appeal.

The album's music is light and with lyrics sung only on two songs. The imagination is able to freely roam through the leprechaun's brief tale. Corea is excellent on many types of keyboards, including electric piano, synthesizers, clavinet and organ.

"Ella and Oscar" (Pablo). Ella Fitzgerald does her magic to nine somewhat forgotten songs, including "Mean To Me," "How Long Has This Been Going On," "More Than You Ever Know" and "I Hear Music." Oscar Peterson's piano accompaniment is excellent and his solos have you wanting more. There is an extended, individualistic interpretation of "April In Paris" on the second side, throughout which they are joined by bassist Ray Brown. This is a classic album.

"THEIR GREATEST Hits 1971-1975" by Eagles (Asylum). Sometimes, greatest hits packages have weak spots but not this powerhouse collection. Every song is a bona fide hit, from "Take It Easy" through "Best of My Love." Again, it is a classic collection which I would have improved only by adding "Doolin-Dalton" and "On the Border."

"The Best Of" by Leonard Cohen (Columbia). The emphasis is on the earlier songs by this folk poet, including the classic "Suzanne," "Bird On the Wire," "Sisters of Mercy" and "Hey, That's No Way To Say Goodbye." Many of the songs will be familiar from the Judy Collins' cover versions, which have received more radio play through the years. This is also highly recommended.

Soundings:

LITTLE ANTHONY and the IMPERIALS have split after 18 years together. The act recently was packing them in at Las Vegas. BURTON CUMMINGS, formerly lead singer and main writer for the Guess Who, has signed as a solo performer with Columbia.

Albums in the works: "Tightly Knit" and "A Lot of Bottle" by CLIMAX BLUES BAND; "American Pastime" by THREE DOG NIGHT; JOE WALSH'S "You Can't Argue With a Sick Mind"; and albums by JOHN SEBASTIAN AND MELANIE.

In the area: JOHNNY WINTER tonight at the Aragon, Chicago; ROXY MUSIC, Saturday at Uptown Theater, Chicago; and CHARLES EARLAND, Wednesday through March 28 at the Jazz Medium, Chicago.

Intimidation, successful work strategy in the '70s

"WINNING THROUGH INTIMIDATION"
BY ROBERT N. RINGER
Funk & Wagnalls, $9.95
"POWER! HOW TO GET IT, HOW TO USE IT"
BY MICHAEL KORDA
Random House, $8.95

The book stall

Anyone who has read the Horatio Alger stories and believes that the road to success is paved with hard work will be shocked by the new wave of books on the subject. Positive mental attitude won't get you anywhere. Long hours and hard work will only leave you exhausted. You no longer have to win friends to influence people.

The new success strategy's strongest spokesman is Robert Ringer. The title of his book, "Winning Through Intimidation," is an accurate indication of his feelings about the Protestant work ethic — it simply doesn't work.

Currently a wealthy real estate agent, Ringer recounts his early on-the-job education at what used to be called the "School of Hard Knocks" but now is more appropriately called "Screw-U." His education, which consisted of observing successful salesmen and studying their techniques, soon taught him that the more he allowed himself to be intimidated by the other parties to a deal, the less money he made.

SO HE MASTERED the art and science of intimidation and earned more money with every successive deal. Now, thanks to Ringer, students enrolled in "Introduction to Intimidation" have an authoritative text book, full of advice and examples to guide them up the ladder of success.

Once the executive has realized that there's more to success than hard work, he should read Michael Korda's "Power! How to Get It, How to Use It." Unlike "Winning Through Intimidation," which is basically the autobiography of Ringer's own rise to the top, "Power" is the account of how some of this country's most powerful people got there.

The powerful person, according to Korda, frequently makes others inconvenience themselves for him but seldom returns the favor.

A TOP Hollywood producer, for example, begrudgingly grants an audience to an elderly screenwriter. The appointed time arrives and so does the screenwriter — to find the producer floating on a raft in a hotel swimming pool and determined to stay there. The writer — who is dressed for a business meeting, not a splash party and who can't swim, in any case — obviously has great difficulty explaining why his contract should be renewed.

Power people also wear Peal & Co. or Gucci shoes, never wear yellow clothes, always have filled-in desk calendars, and never dial their own phones or use pocket calculators.

KORDA SHOWS the reader how to identify those in control by where they stand at cocktail parties (in the corners), where their offices are located (the corners, again), and where they sit at staff meetings (always to the left of the boss).

The author, who also wrote "Male Chauvinism! How it Works," devotes a chapter to women. In keeping women from assuming real positions of power, men often rely upon maintaining traditional sex roles, such as asking the woman to take minutes at a staff meeting. The female executive, he advises, can use these same roles, to her advantage. For example, nobody will ask a women to give up her chair, even if it is the power seat.

Vocalist turns from soul to pop, makes hit album

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

Good music transcends categorization and appeals to a wide variety of listeners. Unfortunately, too often a musician is stuck in a category and is overlooked by most listeners.

Ann Peebles, 28, is on the verge of becoming a star, mostly because the title song from her last album, "I Can't Stand the Rain," became a big hit and crossed over from the soul to the pop markets. In addition, another song from the album, "(You Keep Me) Hangin' On," was nominated for a Grammy Award.

As with many other black female vocalists, she started singing as a child in the church choir, which happened to be directed by her father. But the fervor found in her newest album, "Tellin' It" (Hi/London), has more inherent sexuality than religion.

PRODUCER WILLIE Mitchell's total musical control, as always, sets the stage with a heavy rhythm section and punctuating horns which often urge the singer on and sometimes coddle her. The rhythmic shuffle to "Stand By Woman" is particularly memorable, and the song has a good blend on horns and strings too.

Miss Peebles' singing is strong throughout, but she projects the most emotion on the slower, bluesy songs, such as "I Need Somebody." The album's disappointment is that she never really lets go on any song but sticks to a very controlled performance.

Other highlights are "Come To Mama" and "I Don't Lend My Man," which should be a single.

OTHER NEW releases include:

"The Leprechaun" by Chick Corea (Polydor). This is the first solo album since 1971 for the leader of the jazz/rock group Return to Forever. At one time, pianist Corea was only known to jazz fans, but his work with Miles Davis and then Return To Forever have broadened his appeal.

The album's music is light and with lyrics sung only on two songs. The imagination is able to freely roam through the leprechaun's brief tale. Corea is excellent on many types of keyboards, including electric piano, synthesizers, clavinet and organ.

"Ella and Oscar" (Pablo). Ella Fitzgerald does her magic to nine somewhat forgotten songs, including "Mean To Me," "How Long Has This Been Going On," "More Than You Ever Know" and "I Hear Music." Oscar Peterson's piano accompaniment is excellent and his solos have you wanting more. There is an extended, individualistic interpretation of "April In Paris" on the second side, throughout which they are joined by bassist Ray Brown. This is a classic album.

"THEIR GREATEST Hits 1971-1975" by Eagles (Asylum). Sometimes, greatest hits packages have weak spots but not this powerhouse collection. Every song is a bona fide hit, from "Take It Easy" through "Best of My Love." Again, it is a classic collection which I would have improved only by adding "Doolin-Dalton" and "On the Border."

"The Best Of" by Leonard Cohen (Columbia). The emphasis is on the earlier songs by this folk poet, including the classic "Suzanne," "Bird On the Wire," "Sisters of Mercy" and "Hey, That's No Way To Say Goodbye." Many of the songs will be familiar from the Judy Collins' cover versions, which have received more radio play through the years. This is also highly recommended.

Soundings:

LITTLE ANTHONY and the IMPERIALS have split after 18 years together. The act recently was packing them in at Las Vegas. BURTON CUMMINGS, formerly lead singer and main writer for the Guess Who, has signed as a solo performer with Columbia.

Albums in the works: "Tightly Knit" and "A Lot of Bottle" by CLIMAX BLUES BAND; "American Pastime" by THREE DOG NIGHT; JOE WALSH'S "You Can't Argue With a Sick Mind"; and albums by JOHN SEBASTIAN AND MELANIE.

In the area: JOHNNY WINTER tonight at the Aragon, Chicago; ROXY MUSIC, Saturday at Uptown Theater, Chicago; and CHARLES EARLAND, Wednesday through March 28 at the Jazz Medium, Chicago.

Intimidation, successful work strategy in the '70s

"WINNING THROUGH INTIMIDATION"
BY ROBERT N. RINGER
Funk & Wagnalls, $9.95
"POWER! HOW TO GET IT, HOW TO USE IT"
BY MICHAEL KORDA
Random House, $8.95

The book stall

Anyone who has read the Horatio Alger stories and believes that the road to success is paved with hard work will be shocked by the new wave of books on the subject. Positive mental attitude won't get you anywhere. Long hours and hard work will only leave you exhausted. You no longer have to win friends to influence people.

The new success strategy's strongest spokesman is Robert Ringer. The title of his book, "Winning Through Intimidation," is an accurate indication of his feelings about the Protestant work ethic — it simply doesn't work.

Currently a wealthy real estate agent, Ringer recounts his early on-the-job education at what used to be called the "School of Hard Knocks" but now is more appropriately called "Screw-U." His education, which consisted of observing successful salesmen and studying their techniques, soon taught him that the more he allowed himself to be intimidated by the other parties to a deal, the less money he made.

SO HE MASTERED the art and science of intimidation and earned more money with every successive deal. Now, thanks to Ringer, students enrolled in "Introduction to Intimidation" have an authoritative text book, full of advice and examples to guide them up the ladder of success.

Once the executive has realized that there's more to success than hard work, he should read Michael Korda's "Power! How to Get It, How to Use It." Unlike "Winning Through Intimidation," which is basically the autobiography of Ringer's own rise to the top, "Power" is the account of how some of this country's most powerful people got there.

The powerful person, according to Korda, frequently makes others inconvenience themselves for him but seldom returns the favor.

A TOP Hollywood producer, for example, begrudgingly grants an audience to an elderly screenwriter. The appointed time arrives and so does the screenwriter — to find the producer floating on a raft in a hotel swimming pool and determined to stay there. The writer — who is dressed for a business meeting, not a splash party and who can't swim, in any case — obviously has great difficulty explaining why his contract should be renewed.

Power people also wear Peal & Co. or Gucci shoes, never wear yellow clothes, always have filled-in desk calendars, and never dial their own phones or use pocket calculators.

KORDA SHOWS the reader how to identify those in control by where they stand at cocktail parties (in the corners), where their offices are located (the corners, again), and where they sit at staff meetings (always to the left of the boss).

The author, who also wrote "Male Chauvinism! How it Works," devotes a chapter to women. In keeping women from assuming real positions of power, men often rely upon maintaining traditional sex roles, such as asking the woman to take minutes at a staff meeting. The female executive, he advises, can use these same roles, to her advantage. For example, nobody will ask a women to give up her chair, even if it is the power seat.

Back from 4-year hiatus

A 'human' Neil Diamond

by ROBERTA G. WAX

Singer Neil Diamond stopped performing to become a human being again. His last public appearance was a concert nearly four years ago.

Now he is ready to perform again, beginning with a major concert tour of Australia and New Zealand.

"You tend to lose sight of yourself as a person when you're out performing," he explained. "Inside all of us is a person. It was important to me to find myself again, to reestablish my roots and my friends, to do things that ordinary people do, like read a book, take a walk on the beach, go fishing.

"These are things that people take for granted, but that I was totally unable to do while I was out there. So I stopped performing to become a human being again."

Diamond, 35, spent the first year of his "vacation" working on the score for the movie "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" and the second year "recuperating from doing "Jonathan Livingston Seagull."

"THAT WAS MY first experience with films and I looked at it very much like a student. It was an education for me and I'd like to do it again, but unfortunately, you don't find as many interesting projects as 'Seagull,' which really lent itself to the music and to the song writing."

This is his year, the throaty-voiced singer said. He celebrates his 10th anniversary in the music business with a new album, "Beautiful Noise," to be released this month, and hopes to do some acting and possibly a television special.

Neil Diamond

Diamond says his music has changed in the past 10 years, but oldies like "Cherry, Cherry" and "Kentucky Woman" still hold up.

"Sure, my music has changed, because the music is a reflection of the writer and I've changed. I've become wiser, I've become happier. I like to think I've become better. And the music reflects that."

Songs, he said, are like children — it's impossible to pick a favorite because they all come from you.

"They're all part of you, they come from you. You love them all. The weak ones you love because they're weak, the strong for their strength."

DIAMOND REFUSES to categorize himself as just a singer, composer or songwriter, noting, "I do them all. Each has a certain place in my life.

"I think of muself as a person. The creative aspect is one part of what I am. My work is part of me. A very big part of me, maybe even the major part of me. But there are lots of other aspects which are very personal and I keep private . . .

"Writing comes not only from a person's experiences, but from his fantasies, from his dreams, from his fears and frustrations. Everything that makes up a person."

If he had to do it all again, he said, "there are probably a lot of things that I would change, that would save me a lot of frutration and depression.

"But again, if I hand't gone through all those things, maybe I wouldn't have learned the lessons that you have to learn, all the negative things you have to go through before you can understand them, before you can deal with them."

Despite his 10 years of music experience, sellout concerts and gold records, Diamond still doesn't feel he has "made it."

"I don't think I'll ever feel that way. I feel like I'm just beginning. I hope I never feel as though I've made it. I'm always a little scared, and I always feel there's a great deal more to do."

Robinson Crusoe treated badly in 'Man Friday'

by DAVID DUGAS
(A Review)

Robinson Crusoe has survived such screen permutations as "Miss Robin Crusoe" and "Robinson Crusoe on Mars." Doubtless the 257-year-old tale will endure despite the deadly treatment it gets in "Man Friday," costarring Peter O'Toole and Richard Roundtree.

This version, shot through with contemporary insights and platitudes, ends with the free-spirited Friday happily returning home to his tribe, leaving the materialistic and uptight Crusoe on the island to live out his years in solitary refinement.

Besides a muddled message, "Man Friday" offers little besides a chance to see Roundtree as something other than the hit stud he plays in those "Shaft" movies and O'Toole in yet another picture unworthy of his talent.

BRITISH DIRECTOR Jack Gold filmed "Man Friday" in Puerto Vallarta, apparently on a shoestring budget as if the resulting footage were meant for Saturday morning television.

Since a TV version of "Robinson Crusoe" starring Stanley Baker and Ram John Holder was made shortly before this one went into production, it's all the more puzzling that anyone thought still another one was needed.

Avco Embassy is distributing "Man Friday," rated PG.

China painting earns 3 ribbons

Marianne B. Johnson of Des Plaines earned three ribbons in the recent Town and Country annual hobby ceramic show in Grayslake. All her entries were in the china painting category.

She was awarded a first place ribbon for a porcelain plate and two honorable mentions, for a vase with 24-karat gold handles and an oval plaque mounted on velvet in a frame.

Painting in oils for the past 10 years and on china for the past four, Mrs. Johnson is now teaching the art of china painting.

New ballet is slated

The Chicago Ballet this weekend will present the world premiere of "Intermission at the Movies" choreographed by Stuart Sebastian to music by Poulenc.

The March program also includes Doris Humphrey's "Water Study," considered a landmark piece from the pioneer days of modern dance. The number has no musical or sound accompaniment.

"Danse Brilliante," choreographed by the company's new co-director Frederic Franklin to Tchaikovsky's music, is a recent addition to the program.

THE COMPANY will repeat Ashton's "Facade," a character piece which was presented by the dancers this fall.

Performances begin at 8 tonight and Saturday in the tiny chamber theatre, 1016 N. Dearborn St., with 3 p.m. matinees scheduled Saturday and Sunday.

Tickets are $7 for all performances except the $5.50 Saturday matinee. Further information is available by calling 337-6539.

Back from 4-year hiatus

A 'human' Neil Diamond

by ROBERTA G. WAX

Singer Neil Diamond stopped performing to become a human being again. His last public appearance was a concert nearly four years ago.

Now he is ready to perform again, beginning with a major concert tour of Australia and New Zealand.

"You tend to lose sight of yourself as a person when you're out performing," he explained. "Inside all of us is a person. It was important to me to find myself again, to reestablish my roots and my friends, to do things that ordinary people do, like read a book, take a walk on the beach, go fishing.

"These are things that people take for granted, but that I was totally unable to do while I was out there. So I stopped performing to become a human being again."

Diamond, 35, spent the first year of his "vacation" working on the score for the movie "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" and the second year "recuperating from doing "Jonathan Livingston Seagull."

"THAT WAS MY first experience with films and I looked at it very much like a student. It was an education for me and I'd like to do it again, but unfortunately, you don't find as many interesting projects as 'Seagull,' which really lent itself to the music and to the song writing."

This is his year, the throaty-voiced singer said. He celebrates his 10th anniversary in the music business with a new album, "Beautiful Noise," to be released this month, and hopes to do some acting and possibly a television special.

Neil Diamond

Diamond says his music has changed in the past 10 years, but oldies like "Cherry, Cherry" and "Kentucky Woman" still hold up.

"Sure, my music has changed, because the music is a reflection of the writer and I've changed. I've become wiser, I've become happier. I like to think I've become better. And the music reflects that."

Songs, he said, are like children — it's impossible to pick a favorite because they all come from you.

"They're all part of you, they come from you. You love them all. The weak ones you love because they're weak, the strong for their strength."

DIAMOND REFUSES to categorize himself as just a singer, composer or songwriter, noting, "I do them all. Each has a certain place in my life.

"I think of muself as a person. The creative aspect is one part of what I am. My work is part of me. A very big part of me, maybe even the major part of me. But there are lots of other aspects which are very personal and I keep private . . .

"Writing comes not only from a person's experiences, but from his fantasies, from his dreams, from his fears and frustrations. Everything that makes up a person."

If he had to do it all again, he said, "there are probably a lot of things that I would change, that would save me a lot of frutration and depression.

"But again, if I hand't gone through all those things, maybe I wouldn't have learned the lessons that you have to learn, all the negative things you have to go through before you can understand them, before you can deal with them."

Despite his 10 years of music experience, sellout concerts and gold records, Diamond still doesn't feel he has "made it."

"I don't think I'll ever feel that way. I feel like I'm just beginning. I hope I never feel as though I've made it. I'm always a little scared, and I always feel there's a great deal more to do."

Robinson Crusoe treated badly in 'Man Friday'

by DAVID DUGAS
(A Review)

Robinson Crusoe has survived such screen permutations as "Miss Robin Crusoe" and "Robinson Crusoe on Mars." Doubtless the 257-year-old tale will endure despite the deadly treatment it gets in "Man Friday," costarring Peter O'Toole and Richard Roundtree.

This version, shot through with contemporary insights and platitudes, ends with the free-spirited Friday happily returning home to his tribe, leaving the materialistic and uptight Crusoe on the island to live out his years in solitary refinement.

Besides a muddled message, "Man Friday" offers little besides a chance to see Roundtree as something other than the hit stud he plays in those "Shaft" movies and O'Toole in yet another picture unworthy of his talent.

BRITISH DIRECTOR Jack Gold filmed "Man Friday" in Puerto Vallarta, apparently on a shoestring budget as if the resulting footage were meant for Saturday morning television.

Since a TV version of "Robinson Crusoe" starring Stanley Baker and Ram John Holder was made shortly before this one went into production, it's all the more puzzling that anyone thought still another one was needed.

Avco Embassy is distributing "Man Friday," rated PG.

China painting earns 3 ribbons

Marianne B. Johnson of Des Plaines earned three ribbons in the recent Town and Country annual hobby ceramic show in Grayslake. All her entries were in the china painting category.

She was awarded a first place ribbon for a porcelain plate and two honorable mentions, for a vase with 24-karat gold handles and an oval plaque mounted on velvet in a frame.

Painting in oils for the past 10 years and on china for the past four, Mrs. Johnson is now teaching the art of china painting.

A TRAVELING EXHIBIT by the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute on behalf of America's first industry, glassmaking, features an illustrated panorama of American history. It will appear at Woodfield Shopping Center next Thursday through March 28.

Search for unusual bottles

Bottle owners are invited to have their antique containers appraised at the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute's (GCMI) traveling Bicentennial exhibit, "A History of Our Country As Seen Through Glass."

The exhibit, made available to the public at shopping centers and state fairs throughout the country, will be on display at Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg next Thursday through March 28.

GCMI is making a nationwide search to find the six most unusual American-made glass containers. Some outstanding contenders already singled out include a women's scent bottle of 1820, a rare pictorial flask previously unrecorded in standard bottle lists, and an 1820-era medicine chest complete with bottles, scales and weights.

The purpose of the search is to highlight the significant role the glass industry has played in the nation's development. The GCMI traveling exhibit is an illustrated panorama of American history with a display of authentic bottles from six key historical periods.

THE GLASS industry's trade association is offering the owners of the six winning bottles a trip to the Jamestown, Va., Glasshouse, site of America's first industry.

Galleries, bottle dealers and professional collectors are ineligible to participate in the search. The exhibit's spokesman, Norman Heckler, will determine the authenticity of containers brought to the exhibit at Woodfield. Potential prize bottles will be photographed and their distinguishing characteristics recorded for final judging.

When the search is completed, a committee of glass experts will review the discoveries and choose the six outstanding bottles which will temporarily join GCMI's "Americana Collection of Glass."

Persons who miss the exhibit, but believe they have a rare glass container that might qualify, are invited to provide written details including photographs to the GCMI News Bureau, 866 Third Ave., Suite 2000, New York, N.Y., 10022.

Wolfman Jack freaks out on visit to Tokyo

by MARIANNA OHE

Tokyo doesn't even have a fulltime rock 'n' roll station so it wasn't quite ready for Wolfman Jack.

The American disc jockey, whose howls and grunts and cries of "Mercy, Baabeh" are heard on 2,223 radio stations in 40 countries, visited Tokyo on a promotional tour. Shortly after arrival, he appeared at a news conference, complete with fangs and black cape, and threw $100 bills at shocked Japanese reporters.

"I really freaked them out," he said, hanging onto his earphones during a break in a radio show taping. "But then they got into it."

Between interviews, radio shows and filming commercials for a Japanese electronics firm, Wolfman did what he loves best — he talked to young people.

"I'm a street person, so I went into the street with an interpreter and met the kids," he said. "I found out they're hungry to hear their own music, to have a radio station that belongs to them, maybe that their parents don't even like. I find there's a little rebellion there, although the elders won't discuss it."

Wolfman terms the lack of a fulltime rock 'n' roll station in Tokyo "totally, totally ridiculous."

"THE FIRST THING I do in any town is listen to the radio," he says. "That's what I did here and I didn't hear anything, except about 18 commercials in a row."

Shaking his shaggy brown mane and aiming his pointed black beard toward the ceiling, he moaned, "The youth have no voice in this community. The parents have all the money, they run things. It's the same as the '50s in America — you either listened to Teresa Brewer or else."

Wolfman, 37, whose real name is Robert Smith, believes the next international rock 'n' roll super group could emerge in Japan.

He has made radio appeals to Japanese rock groups to send him tapes and records of their music.

"I was around when rock 'n' roll started in America and I know what the temperature of the people was then — it's the same here now. I know how it was in England when the Beatles emerged — it's the same here now. Rock stars have come out of Germany, Switzerland, Ireland, Holland. The American dialect is part of rock 'n' roll," he said.

Wolfman, who co-hosts NBC-TV's late night rock show, "Midnight Special," which is aired on Japanese TV, said he found that Japanese are warm, beautiful people.

"They have a childlike way about them that's unique, man. I meet a guy and say 'hi' and I get a gift. Gettin' love is what the entertainment business is all about and here I'm loved."

BORN IN BROOKLYN, Wolfman grew up on the great New York disc jockeys like Alan Freed and got his own start in a small radio station in Shreveport, La.

The Wolfman image was fashioned at XERF, a 250,000-watt station in Acuna, Mexico, across the Rio Grande from Del Rio, Tex.

Millions of fans around the country wondered who belonged to the mysterious, disembodied voice that floated through the night growing and howling.

From XERF he moved to XERB in Tijuana, KDAY in Los Angeles and finally WNBC in New York.

I find there's a little rebellion there, although the elders won't discuss it."

Wolfman terms the lack of a fulltime rock 'n' roll station in Tokyo "totally, totally ridiculous."

"THE FIRST THING I do in any town is listen to the radio," he says. "That's what I did here and I didn't hear anything, except about 18 commercials in a row."

Shaking his shaggy brown mane and aiming his pointed black beard toward the ceiling, he moaned, "The youth have no voice in this community. The parents have all the money, they run things. It's the same as the '50s in America — you either listened to Teresa Brewer or else."

Wolfman, 37, whose real name is Robert Smith, believes the next international rock 'n' roll super group could emerge in Japan.

He has made radio appeals to Japanese rock groups to send him tapes and records of their music.

"I was around when rock 'n' roll started in America and I know what the temperature of the people was then — it's the same here now. I know how it was in England when the Beatles emerged — it's the same here now. Rock stars have come out of Germany, Switzerland, Ireland, Holland. The American dialect is part of rock 'n' roll," he said.

Wolfman, who co-hosts NBC-TV's late night rock show, "Midnight Special," which is aired on Japanese TV, said he found that Japanese are warm, beautiful people.

"They have a childlike way about them that's unique, man. I meet a guy and say 'hi' and I get a gift. Gettin' love is what the entertainment business is all about and here I'm loved."

BORN IN BROOKLYN, Wolfman grew up on the great New York disc jockeys like Alan Freed and got his own start in a small radio station in Shreveport, La.

The Wolfman image was fashioned at XERF, a 250,000-watt station in Acuna, Mexico, across the Rio Grande from Del Rio, Tex.

Millions of fans around the country wondered who belonged to the mysterious, disembodied voice that floated through the night growing and howling.

From XERF he moved to XERB in Tijuana, KDAY in Los Angeles and finally WNBC in New York.

Social Circle's impact is lasting

by Genie Campbell

THE SOCIAL CIRCLE is back at ALLGAUER'S FIRESIDE LOUNGE with much of the same show it performed last November. Ordinarily I'd complain. Not this time.

Every song is delivered with the same impact and freshness I noted the first time around. Besides, I don't think I could ever get tired of ELEANOR EDWARDS' renditions of "Feelings" and "Sweet Inspiration" or her big-eyed animated looks. Eleanor has her own cut-up kind of style that I wish were catching.

Opening with a spoof of "The Saints" brought from medieval England up through a march beat and finally to Dixie, the Social Circle moves on to the '50s and then takes one step back to the '40s for a soothing selection of songs not often heard anymore. It's a nice change of pace.

Leader and male singer is JERRY GOTLER, who often picks up and plays the clarinet. His son, Charles, plays the drums while TERRY MOSSER, a very talented keyboard artist, rounds out the group.

The Social Circle has a complete, combined sound that other groups are hard pressed to match, even with more members. The quartet has been together five years, an admirable record for combos these days.

I was shocked to hear RICHARD DREYFUSS walked off the set at ARLINGTON PARK THEATRE a half hour before curtain. News travels fast. I read about it while vacationing in Michigan.

But even more disturbing was returning to learn the theater is not only dark, but boarded up and locked. Hilton Corp. charges that producer DAVID LONN is in violation (for a second time) of his lease. Didn't we just go through this?

Corporate shenanigans leave me cold. Lonn's hands, for the time being, are tied. He's not even allowed on the premises. But in the long run it's the public who always gets hurt. Once again we're forced to see a beautiful, productive theater sit empty. Does Hilton worry about public reaction? They should.

The theater management has asked that patrons still holding tickets to "Miss Julie" write for refunds through KEEP Productions, Inc., C/O Arlington Park Theatre, 3400 W. Euclid Ave., Arlington Heights. Mail is being held and picked up daily at the Arlington Heights post office.

"GOD'S FAVORITE," the newest Neil Simon comedy, will open at CANDLELIGHT DINNER PLAYHOUSE with previews Tuesday through Thursday and official opening next Friday.

The 14th play by Simon, "God's Favorite" features Chicago actors BOB THOMPSON, FRANK GALATI, MARGI BANK, AL NUTI, JOE GARBER, DONNA HENSLEE, LOUISE JENKINS and WILLIAM VINES.

"OUR FATHER'S FAILING" by playwright Israel Horovitz will have its world premiere at GOODMAN THEATRE April 1 through May 2 with low-priced preview performances slated for March 26 through April.

"Our Father's Failing" tells the surreal, yet hauntingly real story of a father and his estranged son Alfred, who mysteriously reappears after a 20-year absence.

LOUISVILLE EXPRESS, a five-member combo from Louisville, Ky., is currently featured in the CHICAGO MARRIOTT HOTEL'S WINDJAMMER LOUNGE through April 11.

Another new group entertaining for the first time in the Northwest suburbs, PAM PURVIS AND THE 4TH OF JULY, is playing in the TACK ROOM of the ARLINGTON PARK HILTON HOTEL. The duo features Pam Purvis and husband BOB ACKERMAN. Both sing and trade off on 11 different instruments. No wonder they refer to themselves as the "4th of July."

Boone a fearless columnist

by VERNON SCOTT

Richard Boone trudged out of the Florida fens for a small role in John Wayne's new movie, "The Shootist," and to collect more ammunition for his new career as a newspaper columnist.

Boone has taken to the typewriter with greater vengeance than ever he wreaked as gunfigher Paladin in his old "Have Gun, Will Travel" series.

Bearded and mean-looking, Boone slugged down a pre-lunch double vodka and snorted. He wore the western garb of an actor and the cynical grin of a vitriolic columnist.

From his home in St. Augustine, Fla., he writes a weekly column for the Clay County News, five other Florida papers and a radio station.

He is on the verge of making a deal for a large quantity of money with a national newspaper syndicate.

"I'm a fearless writer," he said. "And why not? Who's going to sue me? I write what I think."

Boone is an outright curmudgeon. His favorite targets are politicians of both parties.

HE WRITES of the President as the Magician from Michigan, El Fordo the Great. The Secretary of State is Henry the Kisser, resident White House dingbat.

Of California's choice between Tom Hayden and incumbent John Tunney in the Democratic senatorial primary, Boone sees Golden State voters as snake-bit.

"I told my readers never to vote me into public office," said Boone. "My first project would be to fire Kissinger and (Senator Frank) Church into orbit in a capsule without retrorockets."

Boone finds writing difficult work but he seems to savor it more than acting.

He has a natural talent for stirring up controversy.

Stanford University sent him packing in his undergraduate days for instigating a fraternity house prank which backfired.

"We filled a dummy with old tin cans and bottles and left it in the middle of the street in front of the fraternity house," Boone laughed. "The first car that came along ran over it with terrible crunching sounds.

"We all ran out screaming that the driver had mangled one of our brothers. Two women jumped out of the car in hysterics."

IT WAS ALL VERY funny until it was learned the driver, who almost expired of congestive heart failure, was Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the ex-President, one of the largest financial contributors to the school.

"They kicked me out," said Boone.

The actor currently may be seen in "Against a Crooked Sky," a family picture complete with boy and dog. He has another film deal cooking. But he will continue his column, movies or no.

"I haven't many illusions about the acting business," he said. "I do what I want to do. People are filled with bad intentions or, worse, no intentions at all. They are just wandering around stealing money."

Boone said he turned to writing because he prefers giving ulcers to getting them.

He isn't, however, patently negative. He writes positively about the Seminole Indians and he is a great friend of the state of Israel. Since starring in "Madron" in that country seven years ago, he has made 11 trips to the tiny country.

"The Israelis love their country," he said. "They are tough, hard-nosed people and I like their courage. They want me to teach television and film at the university in Tel Aviv.

"BUT I'M PRETTY well settled in St. Augustine now. The natives down there are still suspicious of me. I'm not accepted because I'm a stranger — not just becuuse I'm an actor. Although some of the natives think acting is a strange way to make a living.

"When I sit down to write my column, I sometimes deliberately try to stir things up. I aggravate people into looking at problems. I have my head on backwards so it comes out fine.

"Writing is just as difficult as acting. Acting can be automatic, but not Writing. And sometimes I get so worked up pounding the typewriter I punch holes in the paper."

Boone is paid only $1 a year for his columns. But if he chooses to go into syndication, he says, he will earn a smal fortune.

"I'll probably keep the libel lawyers busy," he concluded. "But I can't see Kissinger taking me to court for calling him a dingbat. The truth is a defense."

BALLET SUPERSTAR Mikhail Baryshnikov, appearing in Chicago for the first time, is one reason why only a few tickets remain for the American Ballet Theatre's 6-day visit at the Civic Opera House, beginning Tuesday evening. The troupe, which has some of the world's best dancers, will present ballets ranging from the classic "Giselle" to Twyla Tharp's "Push Comes to Shove," shown at left. Wednesday the company will present an all-Stravinsky evening and Sunday brings the Chicago premiere of Nureyev's new staging of a full-length Raymonda. Box office, 346-0270.

Met museum makes loans

Next fall the Allentown Museum in Pennsylvania will receive from the Metropolitan Museum in New York, 47 paintings by American masters including Copley, Sargent and Stuart valued at more than $2 million, the latest in a 30-year-old loan program that has enriched institutions across the nation.

The Met was the first museum to get into the loan business in a big way when it shipped a collection of Gothic treasures to the Springfield Museum in Massachusetts in 1945. It currently has loans out in 33 states including Hawaii.

Last year 179 institutions — museums, college art galleries and historic homes — borrowed 1,843 objects. Some 1,552 of these were borrowed for periods ranging up to a year, while 291 were lent for a year or more, often on a renewable basis.

"We lend more because we have more," said Mildred McGill, who has arranged all outgoing loans for the past decade. She said loan objects generally are taken from museum storage, where normally they would be seen only by qualified scholars.

WITH 10,000 objects in its American collection alone, the Met has been able to share its native riches generously. The five historic buildings which make up the Pennsylvania Farm Museum in Lancaster are filled with 18th Century gateleg tables, samplers, marriage registers, dower chests and even valentines made in the area. Almost all are on loan from the Met and have been since 1968.

The Met does not charge for lending, but the borrowers must take responsibility for the costs of packing, shipping and insurance premiums. Museum curators must be satisfied that borrowed objects will be cared for properly and exhibited in safe and suitable conditions.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Porous bones occur in many older women

I would appreciate anything you can tell me about osteoporosis of the spine. I have not found one thing that really helps this condition.

I was told five years ago that I had this condition and since that time it seems to be getting worse. In the beginning it only affected my back. Now my legs and arms seem to be affected. After my last bad muscle spasm I have suffered almost continuous pain every day.

My orthopedic doctor has me doing exercises, taking hormones and a medicine to relax my muscles. But so far nothing seems to work, at least to my satisfaction.

Some well-meaning friend told me to be very careful not to break my bones as they would splinter and recuperation would take longer than in the usual cases of broken bones. All of this hasn't added one bit to my outlook on this condition.

Osteoporosis means softening or porous bones. Calcium and actual bone cells disappear causing the bones to be both weak and brittle. This condition strikes one out of four women in the United States after the menopause. It's responsible for the dowager's hump that you've seen in so many older women. That is the raised hump in the thoracic spine which gives the appearance of a modest humpback.

Degeneration can be so bad that vertebrae collapse and there may be major loss of height and considerable deformity.

One of the reasons many older people seem to be susceptible to fractures is because of osteoporosis. That's why a little fall, which wouldn't hurt the younger person, may result in a fractured wrist or even a fractured hip. Many of the fractured hip cases occur in older people because they really have osteoporosis.

The condition is painless in many people. When pain does occur, it is usually because of muscle spasms which you described or it may be caused when a vertebra has collapsed and there is a temporary period of severe pain over the collapsed vertebra.

TREATMENT CERTAINLY is not satisfactory. Hormones have been used and may arrest the condition at least for a few years. Some studies suggest fluoride will stop the process and even result in forming new bones. A group of the Mayo Clinic have reported the use of sodium fluoride, calcium and Vitamin D and claim to have gotten encouraging results.

Those who want more information on treatment and management of osteoporosis can send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 6-10, Osteoporosis: Bone Softening. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 326, San Antonio, Tex. 78292.

Osteoporosis is five times as common in women who do not get enough calcium in their diet. That's why women in the post-menopause age should get at least the amount of calcium equivalent to that found in a quart of milk every day. I recommend the fortified skim milk variety to control the fat intake problem. If they can't tolerate milk, they should take calcium tablets to be absolutely certain that they are not deficient in calcium.

There are two aspects of exercises for osteoporosis. One is to help maintain posture and gain what benefits you can from increased strength of bones. The other is avoiding the types of exercise which may lead to a fracture of the vertebrae or cause problems. That is why you need help in deciding what kind of exercise program is of benefit to you.

Cleaning a painting ticklish for amateur

Dear Dorothy: Do you have a method for cleaning a large, inexpensive, oil-based painting that has absorbed smoke and grim from hanging on the wall all winter? — Jennie M. Daniels

There are only two methods open to amateurs that will not hurt a painting. One is to use a feather duster that has no quills sticking out. The other is to make a ball from the inside of a loaf of unsliced bread and rub it over the painting. Anything else opens the door to possible damage.

Dear Dorothy: I have one of those coco-fiber "lover's-knot" doormats at the back door. It needed cleaning and I want to thank you for the idea of soaking it in an enzyme presoak solution. I let it soak overnight in the solution, then let the water drain out and turned on the shower. It took 36 hours to dry, turned over once. It came out beautifully. — Jan Gilbert

Ooops! You were on your own, Jan — and extremely lucky. I've never thought of an enzyme presoak for a fiber doormat. The references have always been to lightweight garments and pans and such. Reason you're lucky is that these mats are not supposed to soak in water. The report is that they tend to rot when soaked.

Dear Dorothy: Here's a tip for peeling or chopping onions: Keep mouth absolutely shut the entire time you're working with the onion — just normal breathing. Works for me every time — unless someone asks a question or I sneeze. — Helen Butler

Dear Dorothy: When my rubber gloves "spring a leak" I cut off a large portion of the cuffs and use them for opening jars. It gives me a firm grip. — Violette Boehringer

Rugged field assembles for AA tourney

Bob Frisk
Sports Editor

Sit back, relax, put the feet up and enjoy the show.

It's state basketball tournament time — again — in Illinois.

The big guys move to center stage today and Saturday. Hopefully, they will be as entertaining as the little guys.

The small (Class A) schools had their moment in the spotlight last weekend at the University of Illinois Assembly Hall. A team named Mt. Pulaski and young man named Jay Shidler grabbed the headlines.

Mt. Pulaski marched to a dramatic team championship, and Shidler, from Lawrenceville, put on a shooting exhibition that may never be matched again.

The whole state was talking about the Shidler boy when the firing was over Saturday night, and it will take some first-class entertainment by the large (Class AA) schools this weekend to match that superb show.

Everything points to another high-class production. The Class AA field is loaded with talent as action unfolds today in Champaign at the Assembly Hall.

There are clubs that love to run and clubs that stress defense. There are talented big men and super guards, youngsters who should dazzle the Assembly Hall crowds and television viewers.

There's a classic opening matchup between runnin' Thornridge and walkin' Aurora West, and most observers feel only one club — Marion — is without hope for the big prize. The overall talent is there.

Rarely has a season been filled with so many surprises, so many question-marks. Injuries nailed key players on contending clubs, but the clubs survived. The AA poll leaders — Peoria Richwoods and East Leyden — departed early, opening up all sorts of possibilities in the well-balanced alignment.

Now there are only eight remaining, the Elite Eight, and that group moves into the spotlight today, starting at 12:15.

How do the teams stack up? Who are the boys to watch? I hope the following sketches on the final eight add to your enjoyment of the 1976 Illinois Class AA tournament:

THORNRIDGE VS. AURORA WEST
12:15 p.m. Friday

Thornridge, a school that gained national attention with its awesome back-to-back state titlists in 1971-72, returns to Champaign clearly vulnerable but still formidable.

The Falcons are fortunate to be alive. "We almost didn't wake up soon enough," said coach Dave Lezeau after a dramatic 66-64 overtime victory Tuesday over Homewood-Flossmoor. "They outplayed us until those last six minutes."

Thornridge was down by 10 points with less than six minutes remaining and in serious foul problems but still pulled it out. Just getting to the state is the mightiest challenge, and the Falcons should be more relaxed after tension-filled confrontations with Bloom, St. Laurence and Flossmoor.

"We've had some problems, some adversity this season," Lazeau said, "but from the beginning we knew this could be an exceptional team. We have a lot of talent, but there was a question of whether the kids could hang together."

Thornridge lost 6-10 Pat McCanna with a broken jaw, fell to East Chicago (Ind.) Washington the following night, but hasn't lost since. There has been some talk of re-inserting McCanna in the lineup with a protective mask, but the Falcons have done a super job without him.

"We have a pressing defense, quickness and team balance," said Lezeau. "Without McCanna the other players took the rest of the season as a personal challenge. Everything is geared to a team concept."

The boys to watch today will be 6-4 Bill Cunningham, the hero Tuesday, and 5-11 Derrick Jackson. Cunningham scores at 17.0 per game, pulls down 11 rebounds and is a defensive whiz. Jackson puts the "go" in the attack as the floor general.

While Thornridge likes to run, Aurora West is very patient. Coach John McDougal, who was a Prospect High assistant at one time, preaches the classic pattern offense and sticky man-to-man defense.

In 30 outings, Aurora has yielded an average of 42 points a game. Eleven opponents have been under 40 and the biggest yield was 57 to Bloom — in overtime.

Aurora West features two super players in 6-foot-5 Ron Hicks and 6-4 Jay Bryant. They both had brothers on the 1973 West team that reached Champaign.

"Our system of play seldom results in individual statistics," McDougal said, "but I can assure you both these boys are All-State candidates."

Hicks was the unanimous choice as the No. 1 player in the Upstate Eight this winter and is dominating underneath at 225 pounds, averaging 15 points and 13 rebounds. He is a standout on defense.

Aurora also featured some strong guard play Tuesday against McHenry from 6-2 junior Larry Hatchett, and he should play a vital role against the speedsters from Thornridge.

McDougal claims this 1976 club is "a little more balanced and patient than the 1973 team," but some observers insist superior quickness will bother them.

Thornridge has that quickness and has also played a superior schedule to get to Champaign. They're accustomed to the pressure-cooker.

FRISK'S PICK: The winner should march into the state championship showdown Saturday. Aurora's style of play could frustrate Thornridge, but I still like the Falcons. Call it Thornridge by five points.

MARION vs DECATUR EISENHOWER
1:45 p.m. Friday

Who are these guys? That's what some people are asking about Marion, the southern Illinois entry and certainly the most surprising finalist.

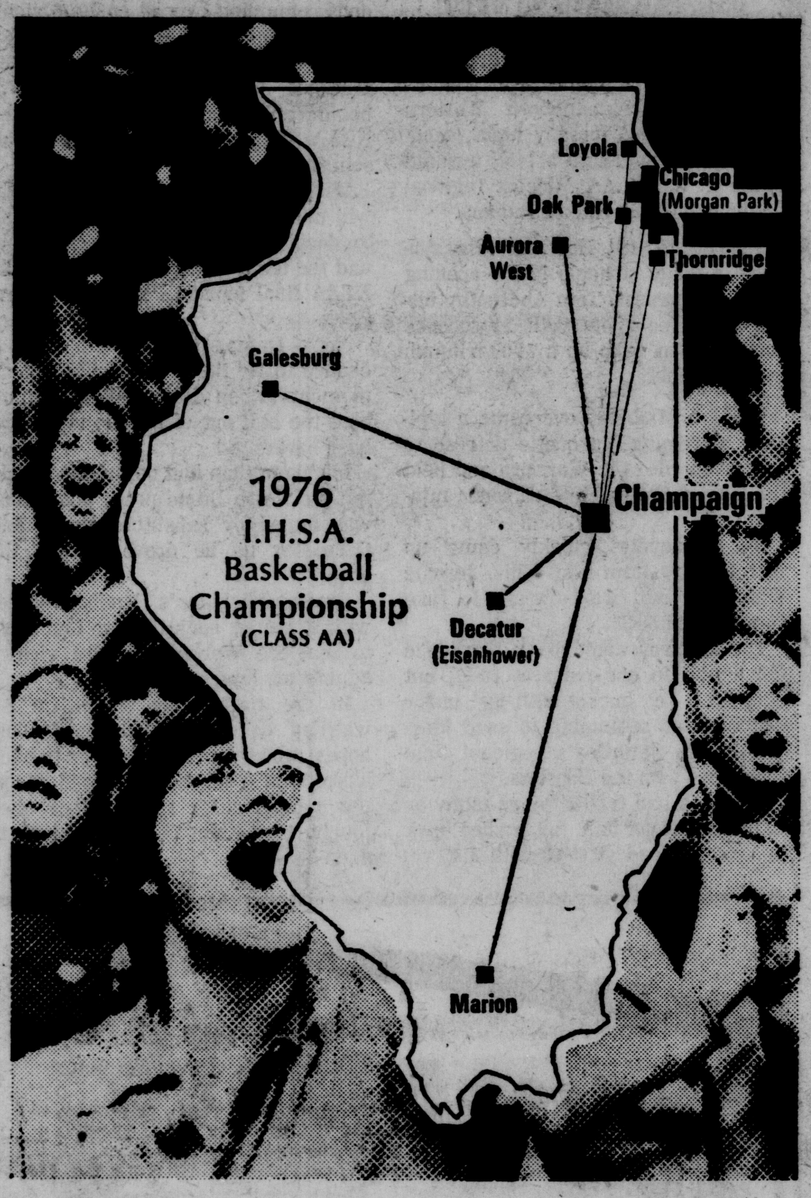
Marion has been playing solid basketball when it counts at tourney time but doesn't appear to have the size or overall strength to contend. The frontline goes 6-3, 6-1 and 5-11. Mike Pickens (the 5-11 forward) is an excellent performer and 6-1 guard Jim Orr had 19 points Tuesday in the win over Edwardsville.

"I'm facing facts," said Marion coach Jon Michels, whose kid brother Joe is a starting guard for Aurora West. "I know if we had to play up North we wouldn't be around now. But the kids are playing well. That's all I can ask."

Marion, which starts four juniors, had to avenge four regular-season losses just to reach the state.

Decatur Eisenhower isn't that big either — three front-liners standing 6-3 — but Bob Witt's Panthers know how to put the ball in the basket and they knocked off touted Normal three straight times this season, including Tuesday in the "Super."

Peoria Richwoods thrashed Eisenhower in February, 91-61 and Witt admitted this week that his club "was a long time getting it back together after Richwoods took us apart."



Eisenhower features good speed and shooting and better-than-average rebounding strength. They score in tremendous spurts, but their defense is suspect.

Hubert Carter and Jeff Roth, both 6-foot-3 front-liners, are the Panther stars with Carter earning All-State recognition.

FRISK'S PICK: Decatur Eisenhower should be able to get by this opening game with Carter the crowd-pleaser. Look for the Panthers to advance by nine points.

GALESBURG vs. MORGAN PARK
7:00 p.m. Friday

Mike Owens, the man who started the Wheeling High School basketball program, brings a solid Galesburg club to Champaign, a club that had to knock off touted Peoria Richwoods as early as the regional finale.

Owens, who had a stint as a Northwestern University assistant after leaving Wheeling, has transformed this Silver Streak outfit from a long shot to one of the favorites. The role may be a bit uncomfortable.

"We've struggled so many times this year," Mike said, "but look at our record (27-3). I'd say that's a helluva struggle job."

Galesburg has played just well enough to win several times on the tourney trail, but the school is in Champaign for the first time since 1969 and that's what counts.

"It's still the same at Galesburg," said Owens. "People around here put more stock in tournament play than in the regular season."

The Streaks feature two exceptional front-liners in 6-9 Mike Campbell and 6-7 Scott Kelley, and Owens emphasized, "I've never had two better players. They can score, rebound and are great inside people. They really represent a problem for other teams to defense.

"Mike is as good a high school player as there is in the state. You can talk about Grunwald (Glen), Holcomb (Derek) or any of 'em. He can play with them all."

The guard play could be crucial for Galesburg today because 5-11 Mike Wilder has had some shooting problems. Carl Finley (6-2) plays around the basket in the Streaks' one-guard offense and helps out underneath.

The Silver Streaks will need an exceptional effort against Morgan Park, the Chicago Public League champ. Bill Warden's Mustangs are coming off an impressive romp past Vocational for the city title.

Morgan Park made the trip to Champaign in 1974 but lost to Proviso East in the opening game. They were a young team then and that team has matured into this '76 powerhouse.

The key boy is rugged Levi Cobb, a 6-5, 210-pounder who is a bonafide All-Stater, a major college prospect. He was a standout on the city champs of 1974 as a sophomore and has been All-Chicago Area for two straight years. He scores 19 points per game and pulls down 12 boards.

But Cobb isn't a one-man show, and that's what makes Morgan Park so impressive.

"We actually came around as a team when Barry (Jeff) began working well at point guard," said Warden. "He's the best defensive player I've ever seen.

"Eric (Bowman) also has made a big difference this season. We'd just be another good city team without him. He's caused us to jell and has taken the pressure off Levi."

Bowman is a 6-7 senior who says, quite frankly, "I know I can shoot and I know I can go one-on-one with anyone."

Morgan Park has rolled up 16 straight victories en route to a sparkling 25-5 record, and the Mustangs have played a cross-section of Illinois teams that should help them adjust in Champaign.

FIRSK'S PICK: I'd love to see Mike Owens take his club all the way, but Morgan Park appears to have too much overall power with the difference at the guards. The Chicago team should advance by seven points.

LOYOLA vs. OAK PARK
8:30 Friday

Pressure. That's the way Loyola Academy plays defense, and they looked masterful Tuesday in frustrating a good Niles West club at Evanston.

"Our kids are beginning to believe in themselves," said Bill Gleason, one of the most respected coaches in Illinois ranks. "After some early season losses we started to play together."

Loyola, the first Catholic League team to win a trip to Champaign, forced Niles into several bad passes and turnovers, and the Ramblers will have to keep the pressure on tonight against powerful Oak Park.

"I'll be going against a team coached by one of my former players, Tom Meyer," Gleason pointed out.

Gleason's Ramblers don't dazzle you with their abilities, but they get the job done, much like an uninspiring but successful New Trier East team of 1973 that finished second in Illinois.

Gleason, who preaches basketball is a game designed for five players, not one or two, shows good balance on his club with Mark Feiereisel the leading scorer at 16.5. Mark's father, Ron, was the first St. Viator basketball coach and a former DePaul University All-American.

Feiereisel has help underneath with 6-8 Kirk Tatge, a slender but effective center, and 6-4 Ron Brandys. The guards, Mark Daniel and Terry Cullen, are super quick.

Daniel is the sparkplug, repeatedly coming up with key steals and strong defense out front, to keep opponents from penetrating.

Loyola has been known as a football school through the years and may need some of that football muscle tonight.

The Huskies of Oak Park are guided by the 32-year-old son of DePaul head man Ray Meyer, and Tom Meyer has done a remarkable job in rebuilding a once-successful basketball program.

Oak Park appears to have all it takes to win a state title, a strong front-line and exceptional guards. In addition, All-State Chuck Dahms is back after an eye injury.

When Oak Park lost Dahms, a 6-9 standout who had 28 points, 26 rebounds and nine blocked shots in a mid-season game against Proviso East, it appeared the Huskies would fold.

"If you had told me we'd win eight out of nine games without Chuck," said Meyer, "I would have thought you were crazy. But these guys have been tremendous.

"The longer we play in the state tournament, the better we'll get. Dahms is getting back in shape now. Why, we're almost getting back to the form that we were in earlier in the season. And we were super then."

"Super" applies to Dahms and it also applies to the guard set of Tommy Norris and Joe Hedger. "Those guards have been as consistent as any you'll find," Meyer said. "Hedger makes our team go."

Hedger averages 14 points and five assists, and Norris, a big-time prospect, scores at a 19.0 clip with nine assists per game.

When Dahms works in the frontline, no one comes in under 210 pounds. John Hendrix is 6-5, 210 and Courtney James, who boosted his average from six to 19 without Dahms, is 6-4, 210.

FRISK'S PICK: Oak Park just has too much overall strength for Loyola although the Ramblers' tenacious defense could cause some problems. Oak Park should advance by 11 points.

SEMI-FINALS

My 12:15 matchup Saturday has Thornridge battling Decatur Eisenhower. Either Thornridge or Aurora West from that Friday opener should be able to get by Decatur and reach the championship game. Call it Thornridge by nine points in a high-scoring shoot-out.

If Morgan Park and Oak Park win Friday, they will collide at 1:45 p.m. Saturday. Don't miss it. This could be the best game of the entire tournament. I like Morgan Park's experience and Oak Park's overall abilities. It's always hard to examine the Chicago Public League entries, but they have won two of the past three AA state titles and that fact alone makes me give Morgan Park a shaky five-point nod.

THIRD PLACE

Last weekend Lawrenceville's Shidler kept fans awake during the Class A consolation game with his incredible shooting. If Decatur Eisenhower and Oak Park match up for third place in Class AA Saturday at 7:00, the fans should stay awake for about one half — that's when Oak Park's overall strength will assert itself. The Huskies by 13.

CHAMPIONSHIP

Thornridge vs. Morgan Park at 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

Thornridge will be coming off the early Saturday game, with more rest and perhaps an easier time of it in the semis, while Morgan Park will be exhausted from a stiff semi fight. But . .

The Morgan Park youngsters have played together the past four years, not just in school but over the summer too. I like that experience. Call it Morgan Park by eight for the Illinois title.

Don't bet your mortgage money on these predictions. Just enjoy the show.

ONE OF THE world's most unusual multi-purpose buildings, the University of Illinois Assembly Hall will host the Class AA state basketball tournament today and Saturday. Action begins at 12:15 p.m. today in Champaign with Thornridge playing Aurora West.

DePaul falls in overtime; Indiana handles Alabama

A valiant last-ditch effort by DePaul went for naught when VMI rallied in overtime to topple the Blue Demons 71-66 in NCAA regional semifinal action at Greensboro, North Carolina Thursday night.

Other NCAA contests were equally hard fought, with Indiana shaking off a pesky Alabama squad 74-69, Marquette just edging Western Michigan 62-57 and Michigan upending Notre Dame, 80-76.

Here's how the action went at three of the four NCAA sites:

DePAUL BOWS OUT

GREENSBORO, N. C. (UPI) — Curt Reppart scored four points in overtime Thursday night to lead VMI to a 71-66 victory over DePaul and Rutgers rolled over Connecticut 93-79 in the NCAA East Regional semifinals.

The Keydets, short but spirited, face unbeaten and third-ranked Rutgers Saturday in the finals of the regional. DePaul scored 11 successive points in the final three and a half minutes of regulation play to tie the game at 62 and send it into overtime. Ron Norwood scored 23 points for the Blue Demons, including seven in the rally that tied the game.

When Norwood fouled out with 33 seconds remaining, one of three DePaul starters to go out with fouls, the Blue Demons didn't have enough firepower to match VMI in the overtime.

Ron Carter had 21 points. Will Bynum had 22 for the Keydets, the surprise team in the playoffs.

DePaul bowed out with a 20-9 while VMI ran its season mark to 22-9 with its 10th consecutive victory.

DePaul led through most of the first half with Dave Corzine, a 6-11 center, dominating the action under the boards and scoring 12 points. But Corzine could score only one field goal in the second half and fouled out with 5:55 remaining.

Curtis Watkins had eight points for the Blue Demons in the first half but he fouled out with 7:29 remaining in the second half with a total of 10 points. Late with a total of 10 points. Late in the second half VMI outscored DePaul 11-1 to take an 11 point lead with three and a half minutes to play.

It appeared the Keydets had the game in hand but Norwood hit on two jumps shots, a driving layup and a free throw to spark DePaul. Substitute Randy Hook hit his only field goal of the night with three seconds to go to send the game into overtime.

In the overtime, Bynum hit two free throws and Reppart scored on a driving layup and two free throws. Randy Ramsey hit a jump shot for DePaul and substitute Emmett McGovern scored a field goal but center Dave Montgomery's three free throws in the last minute iced the game for the Keydets.

In the first game, guards Ed Jordan and Mike Dabney picked up the slack when Rutgers' big men got into early foul trouble.

ONE, TWO TEAMS TO MEET

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Sparkplug guard Butch Lee and Maurice "Bo" Ellis helped No. 2 Marquette hold off stubborn Western Michigan 62-57 Thursday night, sending the Warriors into a long awaited battle in the NCAA Mideast regional finals against top-ranked Indiana.

The undefeated Hoosiers also survived a tough struggle in the opening semifinal contest, Tom Abernethy hitting two free shots with 14 seconds remaining to wrap up a 74-69 triumph over Alabama.

Western Michigan overcame a typically swarming Marquette defense to stay even with the Warriors and held the lead at 51-50 as late as seven minutes left.

But Marquette quickly came up with baskets from Lee, Ellis, Jerome Whitehead and Earl Tatum to take command at 58-53.

The Broncos came back to reduce the deficit to one point at 58-57, but Ellis hit a key bucket with just under two minutes remaining to send Marquette into Saturday's regional final showdown with the Hoosiers.

Alabama had trailed by as many as 12 in the second half, but rushed back to take the lead at 69-68 with 3:45 remaining on a 12-foot jump shot by Keith McCord.

Indiana regained the lead with 1:54 on a bucket by all-American Scott May, but the Hoosiers did not wrap up the game until Abernethy hit both ends of a one-and-one foul attempt that increased the Indiana lead to 72-69. Bob Wilkerson made two more free throws with six seconds left to provide the final margin.

IT'S MICHIGAN VS. MISSOURI

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Rickey Green's two free throws with two seconds remaining capped an 80-76 victory for ninth-ranked Michigan over No. 8 Notre Dame Thursday night after Missouri defeated Texas Tech 86-75 behind Willie Smith's 30 points in the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball semifinals.

Michigan and Missouri, ranked 11th, will meet at 12:15 p.m. EST Saturday to decide the regional championship and the team that will advance to the NCAA final four in Philadelphia next week.

Notre Dame, trailing 78-76, blew a chance to tie the score in the closing moments when Duck Williams fumbled the ball out of bounds under the Irish basket.

Michigan then had no trouble breaking the Notre Dame press and Green was fouled by substitute guard Jeff Carpenter as he drove toward the hoop.

Green, Michigan's leading scorer with 20 points, sank the two foul shots to seal the Wolverines' 23rd victory against six losses.

In the first game, Smith, a 6-2 whirling dervish, killed Tech's last hopes when he scored back-to-back baskets on a rebound shot and a corner jumper after the Raiders had fought to within 77-70 with 4:00 to play.

Frazier, Foreman sign for May bout

Former heavyweight champions Joe Frazier and George Foreman, both looking to bury recent ring nightmares while rekindling dreams of regaining the title from Muhammad Ali, Thursday signed for a $2.4 million fight in May at an undetermined site.

The bout, which is being promoted by Jerry Perenchio and Caesars Palace, the Las Vegas hotel, will be the second between the two, the first coming in January of 1973 in Kingston, Jamaica, when Foreman, then no more than a muscular, unproven fighter, sent Frazier reeling to the canvas six times in two rounds to strip him of the crown.

Each fighter has been guaranteed $1.2 million for the scheduled 12-round fight as opposed to 30 per cent of the ancillary rights, which includes gate receipts and revenue derived from world-wide closed circuit television productions.

Frazier said he would like the bout to be held in a cool climate, preferably in New York, and at Madison Square Garden.

The two fighters are bitter enemies and the fight promises to be one of extreme emotion. Following their first fight, Foreman suggested Frazier's best fighting days were behind him. Frazier dispelled all doubts concerning his boxing career, however, with a courageous effort against Ali in Manila last Sept. 30 when he was stopped after 14 rounds.

Three-way tie in Jacksonville Open

Lanny Wadkins, still struggling to emerge from a two year slump, Ray Floyd, a winner of this tournament seven years ago, and tour sophomore Danny Edwards each shot four-under par 68's to share the first round lead in the $175,000 Greater Jacksonville Open.

To the obvious disappointment of the crowd, many of the superstars, including Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and Hale Irwin, didn't bother to show up — and those who did didn't fare very well. That left the lead trio a stroke ahead of Brian Allin, Mike Hill, Peter Oosterhuis, Nate Starke and Barney Thompson.

Ben Crenshaw, the only entrant who has won two tournaments so far this year, was two back after a 70. Gary Player, rated a favorite because he has played well in the month he has been back in the States from South Africa, had a 73. And Arnold Palmer, still the sentimental favorite, had a 75.

UNC-Charlotte, Kentucky in finals

Melvin Watkins sank an eight-foot turnaround jumper with 30 seconds left Thursday night to give UNC-Charlotte a 80-79 semifinal victory over North Carolina State in the National Invitation Tournament.

In the opening game of the doubleheader, Kentucky guard Larry Johnson drove almost the full length of the court in the final seven seconds and scored on a lefthanded layup as time expired to give the Wildcats a 79-78 victory over Providence.

N.C. State still had several chances to beat the surprising 49ers, but Phil Spence and Glenn Sudhop each missed clear taps in the final seconds.

Charlotte' Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell, who set an NIT record for free throws, finished with a game high 27 points. Maxwell, who converted 13 of 14 free throw attempts, raised his NIT total to 39 of 43 in three games, breaking Alan Seiden's record of 38 successful foul shots set in four games for St. John's in 1959.

Black Hall of Fame honors Banks

Ex-baseball star Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs, former major league manager Leo Durocher and past heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Wolcott were among 21 prominent athletes inducted Thursday into the Black Athletes Hall of Fame.

Four of the 21 inductees were from the Caribbean, having made their mark in the sport of cricket.

Among others induced were baseball's Joe Black and Don Newcombe, football greats Marion Motley, John Henry Johnson, Jake Gaither and the late Paul Robeson, auto racing's Benny Scott and track stars John Woodruff, Dr. Arthur Wint, Herbert McKenley and Barney Ewell.

Also, soccer's Lindy Delapanha, tennis's Ora Washington and basketball star Sam Jones.

The cricketeers named were Lord Learie Constantine, George Headley, Sir Garfield Sobers, Sir Frank Worrell.

The Black Athletes Hall of Fame, started in Jan. 1974, was founded to lionize those black and white people to achieve prominent roles in amateur and professional sports. The inductees will be honored at the third annual awards dinner on March 31 in New York.

DePaul led through most of the first half with Dave Corzine, a 6-11 center, dominating the action under the boards and scoring 12 points. But Corzine could score only one field goal in the second half and fouled out with 5:55 remaining.

Curtis Watkins had eight points for the Blue Demons in the first half but he fouled out with 7:29 remaining in the second half with a total of 10 points. Late with a total of 10 points. Late in the second half VMI outscored DePaul 11-1 to take an 11 point lead with three and a half minutes to play.

It appeared the Keydets had the game in hand but Norwood hit on two jumps shots, a driving layup and a free throw to spark DePaul. Substitute Randy Hook hit his only field goal of the night with three seconds to go to send the game into overtime.

In the overtime, Bynum hit two free throws and Reppart scored on a driving layup and two free throws. Randy Ramsey hit a jump shot for DePaul and substitute Emmett McGovern scored a field goal but center Dave Montgomery's three free throws in the last minute iced the game for the Keydets.

In the first game, guards Ed Jordan and Mike Dabney picked up the slack when Rutgers' big men got into early foul trouble.

IT'S MICHIGAN VS. MISSOURI

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Rickey Green's two free throws with two seconds remaining capped an 80-76 victory for ninth-ranked Michigan over No. 8 Notre Dame Thursday night after Missouri defeated Texas Tech 86-75 behind Willie Smith's 30 points in the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball semifinals.

USC remains consistent supplier of top talent

Jim Murray

The greatest team in baseball history was the 1927 Yankees. Or the 1929 Athletics. Or the 1934 Cardinals. Or the 1919 Black Sox.

But, baseball is not all Yankee Stadium, Shibe Park, Broadway, bubblegum cards and prime time on Channel 7. Baseball is also leaky roofs, dripping showers, mosquitoes in the outfield, Albuquerque, kerosene lighting and a bus ride to Tulsa.

For an autographed photo of Bowie Kuhn and Marvin Miller, what was the greatest minor league franchise in the history of baseball?

The Newark Bears of the '30s were an assembly line to the Yankees. The International League champions of 1936 became the world champions of 1939. They sent up King Kong Keller, Hank Borowy, Johnny Lindell, George Stirnweiss and a cast of thousands in the years they were the Yankee farm club.

The San Francisco Seals of the PCL sent up Earl Averill, Joe DiMaggio, Ferris Fain, Gus Suhr. Rochester used to keep the Cardinals supplied — Stan Musial, Enos Slaughter. The old Baltimore Orioles developed Babe Ruth and Lefty Grove, to mention a couple.

But the greatest farm club in the history of the major leagues is none of the above. The most consistent supplier of major league talent the past 10 years is a franchise maintained at no cost to baseball. It finds and signs its own prospects, suits them up, develops them, refines them, weeds them out — and then turns them over to the big leagues fully polished and ready for the World Series.

The University of Southern California baseball program is to the majors what the Mesabi range is to steel or the forest is to Weyerhauser — a seemingly limitless supply of basic ore or timber.

You could field a pretty good team out of graduates of the Newark Bears. You could field a better one out of graduates of USC. How would you like to start the season tomorrow with Ron Fairly on first base, Gary Sutherland on second, Roy Smalley at short, Rich Dauer on third, Don Buford, Fred Lynn and Dave Kingman in the outfield — and a pitching staff consisting of Tom Seaver, Steve Busby, Tim Barr, Bill Lee, Brent Strom, Tom House and Eric Raich? That would give you a staff which won 92 games last year, a major league MVP, a guy who hit 36 home runs and two .300 hitters. Seven out of nine big league teams would trade you even up for this bunch.

Branch Rickey is always credited with starting the major league farm system. But the wizard of this modern system is Raoul (Rod) Dedeaux, a one-time infielder for the Brooklyn Dodgers. Rod Dedeaux pioneered the collegiate approach to major league baseball. Before Dedeaux, college ball was considered such a doubtful source of big league talent that, on the rare occasions the majors dipped into the university fields, the results were predictably dismal.

Colleges were so little thought of as hotbeds of talent that, on the rare occasion a collegian made it as Lou Gehrig did, he was known as "Columbia Lou." No one would think of tabbing Seaver as "Trojan Tom" because the big leagues are full of Trojan Toms — and Dicks and Harry.

Dedeaux has confounded the oldtimers by sending relays of cocky, confident, capable young men who debate (or throw) the curveball with major league poise and ability.

Baseball management is in a quandary of dismay at the moment. The demise (or, at best, lifetime crippling) of the reserve clause has left them with no clear idea as to how to maintain the assembly line of the grand old game. Baseball, alone of all the major sports, has maintained its own costly, unprofitable training program, buying unknown quantities and sometimes spending hundreds of thousands of dollars to find out they were not only unknown but unable. Football and basketball acquire their talent full-blown, able and marketable.

Golf used to get its player pool out of the caddy shop. Now, it gets it out of the University of Houston. Or Wake Forest. Or the NCAA, generally.

Dedeaux has shown baseball a way to go. Can a young player learn any more in a year at Asheville or Lodi than he can in the Pac-8 batting against the likes of Andy Messersmith (Cal), Tom Seaver, Brent Strom, Bill Lee or Steve Busby? Will a young pitcher find any tougher outs in the Three-Eye league than Fred Lynn (USC) or Reggie Jackson, San Bando or Rick Monday (Arizona State)?

Who needs a reserve clause when developmental costs are zilch? Baseball doesn't even have to worry if the draft law is lifted. They are used to bidding in the open market for services. Of totally unproven commodities. It should be a pleasure to bid for known quantities, for a change.

Almost the only minor league baseball park built in decades is Dedeaux Field on the campus of USC. It is a happy hunting grounds of every talent scout in the majors. If the reserve clause is outlawed altogether, the moguls of baseball should get together to pay off the mortgage. In fact, they should lobby to remove the NCAA limit on 13 full scholarships a year for collegiate baseball. There isn't a team in baseball wouldn't cheerfully pay for 100 scholarships a year at SC for the exclusive rights to the scholars. They could shutter every minor league in their system and still come out ahead.

They claim it now costs them $500,000 per player to develop a star for the game. In that case, what should a coach who has produced a Seaver, Lynn, Kingman, Lee and Busby in less than a decade be worth to the game? The Newark Bears were a semi-pro operation by comparison.

Rod Dedeaux went to bat only four times in the big leagues. Nevertheless he probably should go to the Hall of Fame as a man who has done as much for the great game in his own way as Babe Ruth. Or certainly Branch Rickey or the Newark Bears.

Track team shows promise

Harper anxious to move outdoors

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

Harper track coach Bob Nolan used to recruit his team in the halls of the school. He'd lurk around the corner and wait for a likely candidate to come dashing on his way to class. Or he'd hold a stopwatch at the lunch line.

It used to be that Nolan would have to find the athletes and then convince them that track and field wasn't really such a bad thing.

Today, it seems, the trackmen are coming to Nolan.

"We've got some pretty good track kids out this year," said the coach, whose squad has already shown some good indoor efforts this season.

Nolan and his team are just itching to get outdoors.

Among the top runners on the team are a trio of middle-distance men who all transferred to the Palatine junior college in the past year.

Augie Ziccarelli (Stevens Point), Mark Kaufman (DePaul), and Mike Rohrer (Eastern Ill.) give Nolan a solid corps of runners in the 880-to-six-mile range.

"They've all been running really good," said Nolan. "They're not really in shape yet because we just don't have the indoor facilities, but I think we'll be okay from the half on up."

Another runner Nolan can count on is Rick Reithal, a varsity returnee who was the No. 1 Hawk cross country performer in the fall. Reithal can run the half or the quarter and is a valuable man on the relay teams.

Ziccarelli, from Wheeling High School, was a state qualifier in the mile last year. Kaufman, from Conant, was stronger in the longer distances and qualified for the 1974 state cross country finals. Rohrer was a standout on Fremd's teams in 1973 and 1974.

"I think we'll be strong in the field events," continued Nolan. "We've got some depth in several events, especially the pole vault."

Two of Harper's brightest vaulting prospects are Fremd grads Grant McNerney and Randy Gray. McNerney was third in the Mid-Suburban conference meet two years ago, and Gray, a state qualifier last year, was the first Viking vaulter to surpass 14 feet.

McNerney has already reached 13-8 indoors this season and qualified for the national junior college indoor meet at the University of Missouri.

Another Harper vaulter is former Schaumburg Saxon Bob Nathey, who transferred to a Missouri high school his senior year and placed in that state's track and field finals.

The Hawks have a strong batch of long jumpers, including returnee Brian Walther and football star Butch Allen, a graduate of Carmel High School. Another promising jumper is Schaumburg's George McCahey, who was second last year in the MSL indoor finals.

Wheeling grad Jim Lemke is the cream of the crop in Harper's thin hurdling brigade, and Rolling Meadows' Bob Roels figures to be a standout in the discus, according to Nolan.

"It was a pretty good turnout," Nolan said. "We have about 25 or more out. The sprints and the hurdles might be questionable, but I'd say we'll be better in all the field events."

The Hawks' final indoor meet is the Morton Invite this Saturday at Morton East High School. Among the strong Juco competition on hand will be DuPage, Black Hawk, Illinois Valley, Wright, and Joliet.

This year Harper will be competing in the tough N4C conference. As a matter of fact, the Hawks will be hosting the conference meet on May 13. Harper's first outdoor meet is April 7.

"This should be an interesting season," said Nolan. "We're looking forward to it."

If Harper's season is as successful as Nolan's recruiting, it should be an excellent season.

Soccer coaches clinic at Palatine

Bill Foulkes, coach of the Chicago Sting, will be the guest instructor Saturday at a soccer coaches' clinic at Palatine High School, 150 E. Wood St., Palatine.

The clinic, sponsored by the Palatine Celtic Soccer Club, will begin at 9 a.m. at the school in room 219. Foulkes played for 18 years for England's Manchester United, retiring in 1970. He is also head coach of the North American Soccer League.

Pressure of television

Jim Stefanich from Joliet, Ill., holds the mark for the top three games bowled on national television, according to the Professional Bowling Assn. In the Denver Open in 1974, "Steffy" rolled games of 258, 278 and 279 for an incredible 815 series.

Revitalized DePaul deserves praise

Fans Forum:

Now that De Paul has broken the ice and forged into the NCAA tournament, a lot of praise for Ray Meyer and his men is due. The whole program at De Paul has been revitalized and Meyer, his staff and the players really deserve a round of kudos.

That's why I was especially pleased to read Bob Frisk's article (Friday, Mar. 13) about Hersey High School graduate Andy Pancratz and how he has helped to turn around the basketball fortunes at De Paul.

For all of Pancratz's obvious values to his team and to the program, the one that seems to me to stand out above all is the fact that Andy helps recruiting. Andy is a top-notch player and he is surrounded by other outstanding players, but the man who turned the team around is Dave Corzine of Hersey, who was undoubtedly swayed in his choice of De Paul because of his former friend and teammate, Pancratz.

Fan's forum

ON WITH BASEBALL

Dear editor:

Here's hoping that the baseball season will get on with it before we all lose interest in the game. The owners should have figured out by now that the longer they hold out, the quicker the fans will begin resenting them. And the players ought to know that we fans have very little patience with all this talk about rights and options and reserve clauses. All we want is baseball.

Ted Bolin
Roselle

EDITOR'S NOTE: Commissioner Bowie Kuhn late Wednesday ordered the training camps to open, so the season should begin on time in 1976. But no solution has been found as yet to the complicated contract hassles that the players and owners find themselves involved in.

SHIDLER'S NOT SHY

Dear Fans Forum:

After watching a young man named Jay Shidler reqrite the record books in the Class A basketball tournament in Champaign last weekend, I have come to the conclusion that if you have the talent you might as well flaunt it. Shidler knows he's good and he took adyantage of it. More power to him.

But around here, if a basketball player did what he did (take 35-40 shots a game), he'd have to be darn good or else he'd get booed out of the gym. Shidler, fortunately for him, has the talent to pull it off.

Still, I was a little upset by the fact that a well-played, exciting championship final was upstaged by a run-and-gun prodigy in the consolation game.

West coach on volleyball committee

Royleen Tipton, volleyball coach at Maine Township West High School in Des Plaines, has been appointed to the Volleyball Rules Committee of the National Federation of State High School Assn. and will attend its annual meeting, March 22-23 at the National Federation headquarters in Elgin.

Ms. Tipton, who will represent the central United States (Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin) on the nine-member panel of volleyball rule experts, was recommended for the appointment by the Illinois High School Assn.

The Volleyball Rules Committee is responsible for establishing the rules and interpretations for interscholastic volleyball compeittion in the United States. Approximately 250,000 boys and girls are competing in those programs during the present school year.

The most revolutionary proposal which will receive the committee's consideration in lengthening the game from 15 points to 18, 20 or 21 points. Illinois high schools experimented with the 20-point game this year and Ms. Tipton will provide a detailed report on the experiment which was accepted well by the vast majority of coaches and officials in the state.

Volleyball is an American game which has only recently enjoyed nationwide popularity; and the explosion in girls high school sports has been one of the major causes for the increased interest in volleyball.

In 1971, approximately 70,000 high school students participated in interscholastic volleyball, and only 18,000 were girls. This year 200,000 girls weere among the quarter-million high school volleyball participants.

DICK WICKSTROM CHEVROLET IN ROSELLE

USC remains consistent supplier of top talent

Jim Murray

The greatest team in baseball history was the 1927 Yankees. Or the 1929 Athletics. Or the 1934 Cardinals. Or the 1919 Black Sox.

But, baseball is not all Yankee Stadium, Shibe Park, Broadway, bubblegum cards and prime time on Channel 7. Baseball is also leaky roofs, dripping showers, mosquitoes in the outfield, Albuquerque, kerosene lighting and a bus ride to Tulsa.

For an autographed photo of Bowie Kuhn and Marvin Miller, what was the greatest minor league franchise in the history of baseball?

The Newark Bears of the '30s were an assembly line to the Yankees. The International League champions of 1936 became the world champions of 1939. They sent up King Kong Keller, Hank Borowy, Johnny Lindell, George Stirnweiss and a cast of thousands in the years they were the Yankee farm club.

The San Francisco Seals of the PCL sent up Earl Averill, Joe DiMaggio, Ferris Fain, Gus Suhr. Rochester used to keep the Cardinals supplied — Stan Musial, Enos Slaughter. The old Baltimore Orioles developed Babe Ruth and Lefty Grove, to mention a couple.

But the greatest farm club in the history of the major leagues is none of the above. The most consistent supplier of major league talent the past 10 years is a franchise maintained at no cost to baseball. It finds and signs its own prospects, suits them up, develops them, refines them, weeds them out — and then turns them over to the big leagues fully polished and ready for the World Series.

The University of Southern California baseball program is to the majors what the Mesabi range is to steel or the forest is to Weyerhauser — a seemingly limitless supply of basic ore or timber.

You could field a pretty good team out of graduates of the Newark Bears. You could field a better one out of graduates of USC. How would you like to start the season tomorrow with Ron Fairly on first base, Gary Sutherland on second, Roy Smalley at short, Rich Dauer on third, Don Buford, Fred Lynn and Dave Kingman in the outfield — and a pitching staff consisting of Tom Seaver, Steve Busby, Tim Barr, Bill Lee, Brent Strom, Tom House and Eric Raich? That would give you a staff which won 92 games last year, a major league MVP, a guy who hit 36 home runs and two .300 hitters. Seven out of nine big league teams would trade you even up for this bunch.

Branch Rickey is always credited with starting the major league farm system. But the wizard of this modern system is Raoul (Rod) Dedeaux, a one-time infielder for the Brooklyn Dodgers. Rod Dedeaux pioneered the collegiate approach to major league baseball. Before Dedeaux, college ball was considered such a doubtful source of big league talent that, on the rare occasions the majors dipped into the university fields, the results were predictably dismal.

Colleges were so little thought of as hotbeds of talent that, on the rare occasion a collegian made it as Lou Gehrig did, he was known as "Columbia Lou." No one would think of tabbing Seaver as "Trojan Tom" because the big leagues are full of Trojan Toms — and Dicks and Harry.

In the earlier days of baseball an ability to read and write was considered a drawback. "Ya ain't playin' the Harvards," was Casey Stengel's advice to one of his Phi Beta Kappas. "Ya can't debate the curveball."

Dedeaux has confounded the oldtimers by sending relays of cocky, confident, capable young men who debate (or throw) the curveball with major league poise and ability.

Baseball management is in a quandary of dismay at the moment. The demise (or, at best, lifetime crippling) of the reserve clause has left them with no clear idea as to how to maintain the assembly line of the grand old game. Baseball, alone of all the major sports, has maintained its own costly, unprofitable training program, buying unknown quantities and sometimes spending hundreds of thousands of dollars to find out they were not only unknown but unable. Football and basketball acquire their talent full-blown, able and marketable.

Golf used to get its player pool out of the caddy shop. Now, it gets it out of the University of Houston. Or Wake Forest. Or the NCAA, generally.

Dedeaux has shown baseball a way to go. Can a young player learn any more in a year at Asheville or Lodi than he can in the Pac-8 batting against the likes of Andy Messersmith (Cal), Tom Seaver, Brent Strom, Bill Lee or Steve Busby? Will a young pitcher find any tougher outs in the Three-Eye league than Fred Lynn (USC) or Reggie Jackson, San Bando or Rick Monday (Arizona State)?

Who needs a reserve clause when developmental costs are zilch? Baseball doesn't even have to worry if the draft law is lifted. They are used to bidding in the open market for services. Of totally unproven commodities. It should be a pleasure to bid for known quantities, for a change.

Almost the only minor league baseball park built in decades is Dedeaux Field on the campus of USC. It is a happy hunting grounds of every talent scout in the majors. If the reserve clause is outlawed altogether, the moguls of baseball should get together to pay off the mortgage. In fact, they should lobby to remove the NCAA limit on 13 full scholarships a year for collegiate baseball. There isn't a team in baseball wouldn't cheerfully pay for 100 scholarships a year at SC for the exclusive rights to the scholars. They could shutter every minor league in their system and still come out ahead.

They claim it now costs them $500,000 per player to develop a star for the game. In that case, what should a coach who has produced a Seaver, Lynn, Kingman, Lee and Busby in less than a decade be worth to the game? The Newark Bears were a semi-pro operation by comparison.

Rod Dedeaux went to bat only four times in the big leagues. Nevertheless he probably should go to the Hall of Fame as a man who has done as much for the great game in his own way as Babe Ruth. Or certainly Branch Rickey or the Newark Bears.

Maybe folks were a little skeptical about taking stock in America 200 years ago.
We were young. At war. With no experience.
And who knew if we'd ever pay back the money?
Well, 200 years have passed. And the U.S. government has always paid in full. To the penny.
Now that's not a bad record.

So join the Payroll Savings Plan and save with today's Bicentennial issue of Series E Savings Bonds. It's easy. It's automatic.
And it's safe. After 200 years, you know we're here to stay.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years 4 mos. the first year. Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

Royleen Tipton, volleyball coach at Maine Township West High School in Des Plaines, has been appointed to the Volleyball Rules Committee of the National Federation of State High School Assn. and will attend its annual meeting, March 22-23 at the National Federation headquarters in Elgin.

Ms. Tipton, who will represent the central United States (Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin) on the nine-member panel of volleyball rule experts, was recommended for the appointment by the Illinois High School Assn.

The Volleyball Rules Committee is responsible for establishing the rules and interpretations for interscholastic volleyball compeittion in the United States. Approximately 250,000 boys and girls are competing in those programs during the present school year.

The most revolutionary proposal which will receive the committee's consideration in lengthening the game from 15 points to 18, 20 or 21 points. Illinois high schools experimented with the 20-point game this year and Ms. Tipton will provide a detailed report on the experiment which was accepted well by the vast majority of coaches and officials in the state.

Volleyball is an American game which has only recently enjoyed nationwide popularity; and the explosion in girls high school sports has been one of the major causes for the increased interest in volleyball.

In 1971, approximately 70,000 high school students participated in interscholastic volleyball, and only 18,000 were girls. This year 200,000 girls weere among the quarter-million high school volleyball participants.

Rand girls place high in competition

Rand Junior High School recently competed in a cheerleading and pom pon competition held at MacArthur Junior High School in Prospect Heights. The Rand eighth grade squad placed first while the seventh and eighth grade raiders took second.

Members of the cheerleaders, Raiderettes are Kathy Chaisson, Donna Krol, Stacy Gurewitz, Laura Vesley, Lisa Pergola, Linda Schmidt, Cindy Solum, Laurie Liska, Audrey Berman.

Michelle Dahm, Joan Vallejo, Cindy Olenik, Joan Kaufman, Carrie Poston, Corky Carkhuff, Ellen Furr, Dee Dee Stephenson, Sandra Wheeler.

Laurie Bianchi, Biane Bouschard, Sharon Griffith, Janet Locker, Sherri Griffin, Meg Goedert, Claire Gibbs, Hope Bouschard, Joan Schmidt, Cindy Lesch, Susie Gorey, Mary Annino, Renee Zimmerman, Jill Weiss, Shelly Dormal.

If you're about to buy a new car, see us first and find out how to make it last.

At Ziebart we rustproof every rust-prone inch of your car's body. With nine patented spray tools that get inside the hidden, boxed-in areas where rust starts.

Our unique sealant is attracted to metal and actually creeps into welded seams.

We could tell you a lot more about our process, but there's a better way to find out what we can do for your car. Just come by the shop and let us show you the whole process in action.

This might sound like a strange invitation, but we mean it. Come down and watch us work. It'll make a believer out of you.

200 years at the same location.

Maybe folks were a little skeptical about taking stock in America 200 years ago.

We were young. At war. With no experience.

And who knew if we'd ever pay back the money?

Well, 200 years have passed. And the U.S. government has always paid in full. To the penny.

Now that's not a bad record.

In fact, you might say we're now a pretty well-established outfit to do business with.

So join the Payroll Savings Plan and save with today's Bicentennial issue of Series E Savings Bonds. It's easy. It's automatic.

And it's safe. After 200 years, you know we're here to stay.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

Jim Campbell, a noted hockey instructor and former Illinois speed-skating champion, will be sponsoring a Power Skating Hockey School at the Wagon Wheel Lodge in Rockton, Ill. beginning June 6.

The school, which will offer four separate one-week sessions, will include instruction in power skating, stickhandling, passing, shooting and all other phases of hockey under the direction of qualified instructors.

The school will also offer special instructions for goalies.

There will also be daily, controlled scrimmages as an extension of the formal instruction program.

From campuses nationwide

—Mike Millay, of Arlington Heights, took second place at the 142-pound level in the Southeastern Conference wrestling tournament and represented Louisiana State University at the national collegiate wrestling tournament at Tucson, Ariz., last week.

—Cathy Glass, a freshman at the College of St. Teresa in Winona, Minn., will be attempting to play a part in history when she and other members of the CST women's basketball team try for a new world record.

Glass, a graduate of Rolling Meadows High School, will join her teammates in playing 48-consecutive hours of basketball with 10 minute breaks on the hour.

The present record for consecutive play acknowledged by the Guinness Book of World Records is 46 hours and 38 minutes.

—Robert G. Watson of Buffalo Grove recently earned a varsity wrestling letter from St. John's (Wis.) Military Academy.

—Kent State University has been helped by area athletes this year with the baseball team expecting to get a real boost this spring.

Conant High School has furnished the Flashes with a trio of promising performers. Bill Arkus and Jeff Ironside will anchor the left side of the KSU infield.

Arkus shared the team lead for doubles last year and also smacked a home run. Ironside hit .280 last year but will have to boost an .828 fielding percentage to shore up the shortstop position.

Keith Steelman, another Conant grad, is a candidate for the first baseman's job. He handled 19 chances without an error in reserve action last year.

Ken Gast of Schaumburg only needs to master his control before becoming a starter with Kent State.

Freshman Mark Nelles, from Mount Prospect, finished highly in his events to help the KSU swim team to the Mid-American Conference title.

Paul Withey, a 1975 graduate of Prospect High School, led the Northern Michigan reserve basketball team this year with an 18.3 scoring average.

He was named Most Valuable Player on the Junior All-Tournament Team in the Alpine Thunder Bay Christmas Tournament.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Withey, 411 S. Main St., Mount Prospect, Withey played in 11 varsity games as a freshman this year, scoring a total of 20 points.

A business education major, Withey scored 25 points and snared 20 rebounds in his collegiate playing debut against Michigan Christian.

—Dave Schultz, from Arlington Heights, won the the Most Improved Swimmer award at Carthage (Wis.) College.

Carthage also gave awards to other area athletes. Dave Ennes, a freshman from Mount Prospect, earned his numerals with the basketball team while junior Randy DiVito won a varsity letter with the Carthage wrestling team.

Emil Esposito, a member of the P.G.A. and a former Illinois Open champion, will be giving golf lessons at Mount Prospect Country Club this spring. There will be group, individual, semi-private and etiquette lessons for young people.

Esposito, the new golf professional for the Mount Prospect Park District, will be offering a five-lesson series in a small group situation. Fundamentals of the game will be stressed, helping both beginners and players who might want to shake old habits.

Classes will be offered on Tuesdays from March 23 through April 20 and Thursdays from March 25 through April 22 at the following times:

Class No. 1 — 10-10:45 a.m.; Class No. 2 — 11-11:45 a.m.; Class No. 3 — 1-1:45 p.m.; Class No. 4 — 7-7:45 p.m.; Class No. 5 — 8-8:45 p.m.

All classes will be held at the course's Community Center. Everyone should bring a five-iron to the first class. The fee is $15 with each class limited to eight.

All young golfers age 12, 13 and 14 who are purchasing season passes are required to take the golf etiquette lessons offered by Esposito. Anyone else in this age bracket is also welcome to register. These lessons will also be given at the Golf Course Community Center on May 8, 15 and 22. Sign up at the pro-shop or call 259-4200. There is no fee. Classes will meet at 11 and noon.

There will be private lessons and semi-private lessons for groups of two or three individuals. Each private lesson is 30 minutes and the cost is $10 or six lessons for $60. Semi-private lessons are $6 each or a series of six lessons for $36. A playing lesson of nine holes will be $25.

Metabolism—a building process

HOW DOES METABOLISM WORK?

A trip through the human body in a tiny submarine would be a fantastic education. You could visit the lungs, heart, stomach and kidneys to discover for yourself how these seemingly tireless organs perform their daily magic. If you observed very closely, you could learn something about the process of metabolism. This is the amazing system by which the human body transforms food into energy and living tissue.

Before we tackle metabolism, let's take on a much simpler job — that of building a cabin in the forest. To begin we would chop down trees and clear the land of stumps and rocks. The trees would be sawed up and the lumber could then be used to build the walls and roof of our cabin.

The large rocks could be broken up into smaller rocks to build the fireplace and perhaps a walkway leading up to the cabin door. Mud mixed with weeds might be used to fill the holes in the walls and possibly for a nice smooth floor.

If you put our log cabin inside the human body, it is easy to relate its construction to metabolism.

Metabolism describes two basic processes that take place within our bodies. One of these processes is called catabolism — the breaking down of raw materials and the recycling of some used materials. These materials are used to provide energy to make new cells within our bodies.

The second process is anabolism — the building up of new cells and tissues and the repairing of worn-out tissues. The sum total of all the breaking down and building up is called metabolism.

Going back to our log cabin, we first had to clear the land, chop trees and break up rocks. This can be compared to the body's breaking down the fats, proteins and carbohydrates that we take in as food. After we had everything ready we began using the raw materials to build our cabin, just like the body uses the raw materials found in food to build new cells.

Anabolism and catabolism take place at the same time throughout your life, although not at the same rate. For example, when you have a fever, catabolism proceeds at a faster rate, resulting in a loss in weight. During childhood, when you grow fastest, anabolism takes place at a faster rate than catabolism. In adulthood the rate is generally balanced.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Maria Wallace, 15, of Wilmerding, Pa., for her question.

WHERE DOES THE EXPRESSION "A CAT HAS NINE LIVES" COME FROM?

Cats don't really have nine lives — it just seems as though they do. If you've ever owned a cat, you know how agile this furry feline is. Cats have an amazing grace, and together with their swiftness and perfect sense of balance they are truly music in motion. This is all to the good, for they seem to land themselves in the most desperate circumstances, only to escape miraculously and almost effortlessly. While we marvel at these Houdini-style escape tactics, cats continue to display a fondness for close calls.

Andy knows of one middle-age cat who took a long spin in the clothes dryer, certainly a perilous tumble in anybody's book. The shock of his owner, upon discovering him, was horrible enough. But the veterinarian only shook his head in wonder as he sought to mend this bruised, battered tabby. Happily, he recovered and, having a good memory, the fluff-dried cat avoided the dryer as a place to take a nap from then on.

From campuses nationwide

—Mike Millay, of Arlington Heights, took second place at the 142-pound level in the Southeastern Conference wrestling tournament and represented Louisiana State University at the national collegiate wrestling tournament at Tucson, Ariz., last week.

—Cathy Glass, a freshman at the College of St. Teresa in Winona, Minn., will be attempting to play a part in history when she and other members of the CST women's basketball team try for a new world record.

Glass, a graduate of Rolling Meadows High School, will join her teammates in playing 48-consecutive hours of basketball with 10 minute breaks on the hour.

The present record for consecutive play acknowledged by the Guinness Book of World Records is 46 hours and 38 minutes.

—Robert G. Watson of Buffalo Grove recently earned a varsity wrestling letter from St. John's (Wis.) Military Academy.

—Kent State University has been helped by area athletes this year with the baseball team expecting to get a real boost this spring.

Conant High School has furnished the Flashes with a trio of promising performers. Bill Arkus and Jeff Ironside will anchor the left side of the KSU infield.

Arkus shared the team lead for doubles last year and also smacked a home run. Ironside hit .280 last year but will have to boost an .828 fielding percentage to shore up the shortstop position.

Keith Steelman, another Conant grad, is a candidate for the first baseman's job. He handled 19 chances without an error in reserve action last year.

Ken Gast of Schaumburg only needs to master his control before becoming a starter with Kent State.

Freshman Mark Nelles, from Mount Prospect, finished highly in his events to help the KSU swim team to the Mid-American Conference title.

Paul Withey, a 1975 graduate of Prospect High School, led the Northern Michigan reserve basketball team this year with an 18.3 scoring average.

Splitting time between the reserves and varsity, Withey also averaged 11.8 rebounds per game.

He was named Most Valuable Player on the Junior All-Tournament Team in the Alpine Thunder Bay Christmas Tournament.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Withey, 411 S. Main St., Mount Prospect, Withey played in 11 varsity games as a freshman this year, scoring a total of 20 points.

A business education major, Withey scored 25 points and snared 20 rebounds in his collegiate playing debut against Michigan Christian.

—Dave Schultz, from Arlington Heights, won the the Most Improved Swimmer award at Carthage (Wis.) College.

Schultz, a freshman, joined sophomore Jeff Haseman, also of Arlington Heights, as swimming letter winners.

Carthage also gave awards to other area athletes. Dave Ennes, a freshman from Mount Prospect, earned his numerals with the basketball team while junior Randy DiVito won a varsity letter with the Carthage wrestling team.

Esposito to teach park district golf lessons

Emil Esposito, a member of the P.G.A. and a former Illinois Open champion, will be giving golf lessons at Mount Prospect Country Club this spring. There will be group, individual, semi-private and etiquette lessons for young people.

Esposito, the new golf professional for the Mount Prospect Park District, will be offering a five-lesson series in a small group situation. Fundamentals of the game will be stressed, helping both beginners and players who might want to shake old habits.

Classes will be offered on Tuesdays from March 23 through April 20 and Thursdays from March 25 through April 22 at the following times:

Class No. 1 — 10-10:45 a.m.; Class No. 2 — 11-11:45 a.m.; Class No. 3 — 1-1:45 p.m.; Class No. 4 — 7-7:45 p.m.; Class No. 5 — 8-8:45 p.m.

All classes will be held at the course's Community Center. Everyone should bring a five-iron to the first class. The fee is $15 with each class limited to eight.

All young golfers age 12, 13 and 14 who are purchasing season passes are required to take the golf etiquette lessons offered by Esposito. Anyone else in this age bracket is also welcome to register. These lessons will also be given at the Golf Course Community Center on May 8, 15 and 22. Sign up at the pro-shop or call 259-4200. There is no fee. Classes will meet at 11 and noon.

There will be private lessons and semi-private lessons for groups of two or three individuals. Each private lesson is 30 minutes and the cost is $10 or six lessons for $60. Semi-private lessons are $6 each or a series of six lessons for $36. A playing lesson of nine holes will be $25.

Individual arrangements can be made with Esposito by calling 259-4200.

A booklet listing the season and daily course fees as well as the course regulations for 1976 is also available at the proshop or the park district office.

'Time Travelers' should keep going

by JOAN HANAUER

New York (UPI) A made-for-television movie called "The Time Travelers" is a pilot for ABC's fall schedule, and it could turn into a "Disaster of the week" show featuring large-scale destruction from the death of the dinosaurs onward through history.

Produced by Irwin Allen, whose disasters range from the film, "The Towering Inferno," to the television serialization of "Swiss Family Robinson," the "Time Travelers" pilot airs at 8 p.m. today.

The story line joins thoughtful Dr. Clinton Earnshow (played by Sam Groom) and research scientist Jeff Adams (Tom Hallick), the more physical of the not very dymanic duo, in a time trip back to the Chicago of 1871 to find the cure for a mysterious disease that has hit New Orleans in 1976.

Traveling in time is almost literally as easy as falling downstairs. Earnshaw and Adams walk down a flight of stairs toward a cellar inexplicably filled with clouds when they are transported to the stairs of the Chicago Elevated in 1871.

THEY MUST FIND a doctor named Henderson (Richard Basehart), who apparently can cure the disease, before he is wiped out in the great Chicago fire 29 hours later.

They try to beat the clock and complete their mission. Some of the lines of dialogue are memorable, as when a character beats on a wooden door and shouts, "Mrs. O'Leary, your barn is on fire."

Other lines to remember include the one in which Earnshaw wants to stay in the past with Dr. Henderson's niece, only to be told by Adams, "But she's already dead and you haven't been born yet," and "I guess I just fell in love with history."

Time travel wasn't overwhelmingly successful a few years ago with "The Time Tunnel," and the clock definitely runs slow in the pacing of this effort. Will it turn into a fall series? Only time will tell.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Bridge watchers can recognize the second-rate defender by his plaintive cry: "How was I to know?"

One way to know is to watch your partner's cards and see if he is trying to give you information.

East held the first trick with the ace of diamonds and promptly led the queen of clubs. West signalled as enthusiastically as he could by playing the four spot and East continued with the king. West completed the echo by dropping his deuce, but East was fresh out of clubs and had to let declarer collect the rest of the tricks.

West gave a plaintive cry but no one sympathized with him. The normal way for East to play clubs would have been to lead the king and continue with the queen. Then why did he lead the queen first?

To try to tell his partner that he only held two clubs and wanted his partner to win the second club and give him a ruff. West didn't know, but he might well have worked it out.

Ask Andy

Metabolism—a building process

HOW DOES METABOLISM WORK?

A trip through the human body in a tiny submarine would be a fantastic education. You could visit the lungs, heart, stomach and kidneys to discover for yourself how these seemingly tireless organs perform their daily magic. If you observed very closely, you could learn something about the process of metabolism. This is the amazing system by which the human body transforms food into energy and living tissue.

Before we tackle metabolism, let's take on a much simpler job — that of building a cabin in the forest. To begin we would chop down trees and clear the land of stumps and rocks. The trees would be sawed up and the lumber could then be used to build the walls and roof of our cabin.

The large rocks could be broken up into smaller rocks to build the fireplace and perhaps a walkway leading up to the cabin door. Mud mixed with weeds might be used to fill the holes in the walls and possibly for a nice smooth floor.

If you put our log cabin inside the human body, it is easy to relate its construction to metabolism.

Metabolism describes two basic processes that take place within our bodies. One of these processes is called catabolism — the breaking down of raw materials and the recycling of some used materials. These materials are used to provide energy to make new cells within our bodies.

The second process is anabolism — the building up of new cells and tissues and the repairing of worn-out tissues. The sum total of all the breaking down and building up is called metabolism.

Going back to our log cabin, we first had to clear the land, chop trees and break up rocks. This can be compared to the body's breaking down the fats, proteins and carbohydrates that we take in as food. After we had everything ready we began using the raw materials to build our cabin, just like the body uses the raw materials found in food to build new cells.

Anabolism and catabolism take place at the same time throughout your life, although not at the same rate. For example, when you have a fever, catabolism proceeds at a faster rate, resulting in a loss in weight. During childhood, when you grow fastest, anabolism takes place at a faster rate than catabolism. In adulthood the rate is generally balanced.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Maria Wallace, 15, of Wilmerding, Pa., for her question.

WHERE DOES THE EXPRESSION "A CAT HAS NINE LIVES" COME FROM?

Cats don't really have nine lives — it just seems as though they do. If you've ever owned a cat, you know how agile this furry feline is. Cats have an amazing grace, and together with their swiftness and perfect sense of balance they are truly music in motion. This is all to the good, for they seem to land themselves in the most desperate circumstances, only to escape miraculously and almost effortlessly. While we marvel at these Houdini-style escape tactics, cats continue to display a fondness for close calls.

Andy knows of one middle-age cat who took a long spin in the clothes dryer, certainly a perilous tumble in anybody's book. The shock of his owner, upon discovering him, was horrible enough. But the veterinarian only shook his head in wonder as he sought to mend this bruised, battered tabby. Happily, he recovered and, having a good memory, the fluff-dried cat avoided the dryer as a place to take a nap from then on.

Special auction planned to help women in sports

Autographed personal possessions of more than 100 celebrities and athletes will be auctioned to the general public during the next two months, with the proceeds to be used to fund the new Women's Sports Foundation, founded by Billie Jean King to promote opportunities for women to participate in sports.

Among the items to be used are a lithograph of the White House, signed by Mrs. Betty Ford; the racquet used by Ms. King at Wimbledon last year when she won her sixth singles title, and the tennis dress she wore last year as player-coach for the Philadelphia Freedoms; a $3,000 sequined concert suit worn by Elton John; a football personally autographed by O. J. Simpson; and Olga Korbut's dancing slippers.

The Women's Sports Foundation, a non-profit charitable corporation, has the fourfold purpose of:

1) Education of general public concerning women's athletic capabilities and achievements.

2) Promotion of equal rights and opportunities for women in sports.

3) Cultivation of the ideals of good sportsmanship and fair play by women in sports.

4) Support of the participation of women in sports for their health, enjoyment and career opportunities.

In implementing these goals, the foundation hopes to establish a Women's Sports Hall of Fame; provide athletic scholorships to women based on athletic ability, financial need and potential benefit to other women athletes; establish a quarterly newsletter to foundation members with information about foundation and women's athletes' activities; sponsor athletic competitions and clinics for girls and women; and establish a library and information center on sports-related activities concerning women.

See scoreboard for auction items

"Women interested in sports have been talking for years about establishing programs and activities like these," Ms. King said. "But very little can be done without money. Hopefully, the auction will serve as a catalyst in attracting both money and attention to the foundation and the work it intends to do. If we're successful many thousands of girls and women across the country will benefit."

Typical of the items to be auctioned by the foundation are Chris Evert's lucky yellow tennis dress, Joe Namath's warm-up pants and jogging shorts, a Halston vest worn by Candice Bergen in "11 Harrow House," signed manuscripts of their television show by both Mary Tyler Moore and Valerie Harper, and an original drawing of Snoopy signed by his creator, Charles Schultz.

Bids, with a minimum of $25, must be postmarked no later than March 31. For a complete list of items to be auctioned, see The Herald "Scoreboard" elsewhere in sports.

Send bids to Women's Sports Foundation, Suite 266, 1660 S. Amphlett Blvd. San Mateo, Calif. 94402.

Write your bid on a piece of paper along with: a) The number of the item(s) you are bidding on; b) The name of the item's donor; c) Your name and address. The number of the item must also be placed on the outside of the envelope in which the bid is mailed.

'Time Travelers' should keep going

by JOAN HANAUER

New York (UPI) A made-for-television movie called "The Time Travelers" is a pilot for ABC's fall schedule, and it could turn into a "Disaster of the week" show featuring large-scale destruction from the death of the dinosaurs onward through history.

Produced by Irwin Allen, whose disasters range from the film, "The Towering Inferno," to the television serialization of "Swiss Family Robinson," the "Time Travelers" pilot airs at 8 p.m. today.

The story line joins thoughtful Dr. Clinton Earnshow (played by Sam Groom) and research scientist Jeff Adams (Tom Hallick), the more physical of the not very dymanic duo, in a time trip back to the Chicago of 1871 to find the cure for a mysterious disease that has hit New Orleans in 1976.

Traveling in time is almost literally as easy as falling downstairs. Earnshaw and Adams walk down a flight of stairs toward a cellar inexplicably filled with clouds when they are transported to the stairs of the Chicago Elevated in 1871.

THEY MUST FIND a doctor named Henderson (Richard Basehart), who apparently can cure the disease, before he is wiped out in the great Chicago fire 29 hours later.

They try to beat the clock and complete their mission. Some of the lines of dialogue are memorable, as when a character beats on a wooden door and shouts, "Mrs. O'Leary, your barn is on fire."

Other lines to remember include the one in which Earnshaw wants to stay in the past with Dr. Henderson's niece, only to be told by Adams, "But she's already dead and you haven't been born yet," and "I guess I just fell in love with history."

Time travel wasn't overwhelmingly successful a few years ago with "The Time Tunnel," and the clock definitely runs slow in the pacing of this effort. Will it turn into a fall series? Only time will tell.

Sender should be receiving

Bridge watchers can recognize the second-rate defender by his plaintive cry: "How was I to know?"

One way to know is to watch your partner's cards and see if he is trying to give you information.

East held the first trick with the ace of diamonds and promptly led the queen of clubs. West signalled as enthusiastically as he could by playing the four spot and East continued with the king. West completed the echo by dropping his deuce, but East was fresh out of clubs and had to let declarer collect the rest of the tricks.

West gave a plaintive cry but no one sympathized with him. The normal way for East to play clubs would have been to lead the king and continue with the queen. Then why did he lead the queen first?

To try to tell his partner that he only held two clubs and wanted his partner to win the second club and give him a ruff. West didn't know, but he might well have worked it out.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Special auction planned to help women in sports

Autographed personal possessions of more than 100 celebrities and athletes will be auctioned to the general public during the next two months, with the proceeds to be used to fund the new Women's Sports Foundation, founded by Billie Jean King to promote opportunities for women to participate in sports.

Among the items to be used are a lithograph of the White House, signed by Mrs. Betty Ford; the racquet used by Ms. King at Wimbledon last year when she won her sixth singles title, and the tennis dress she wore last year as player-coach for the Philadelphia Freedoms; a $3,000 sequined concert suit worn by Elton John; a football personally autographed by O. J. Simpson; and Olga Korbut's dancing slippers.

The Women's Sports Foundation, a non-profit charitable corporation, has the fourfold purpose of:

1) Education of general public concerning women's athletic capabilities and achievements.

2) Promotion of equal rights and opportunities for women in sports.

3) Cultivation of the ideals of good sportsmanship and fair play by women in sports.

4) Support of the participation of women in sports for their health, enjoyment and career opportunities.

In implementing these goals, the foundation hopes to establish a Women's Sports Hall of Fame; provide athletic scholorships to women based on athletic ability, financial need and potential benefit to other women athletes; establish a quarterly newsletter to foundation members with information about foundation and women's athletes' activities; sponsor athletic competitions and clinics for girls and women; and establish a library and information center on sports-related activities concerning women.

See scoreboard for auction items

"Women interested in sports have been talking for years about establishing programs and activities like these," Ms. King said. "But very little can be done without money. Hopefully, the auction will serve as a catalyst in attracting both money and attention to the foundation and the work it intends to do. If we're successful many thousands of girls and women across the country will benefit."

Typical of the items to be auctioned by the foundation are Chris Evert's lucky yellow tennis dress, Joe Namath's warm-up pants and jogging shorts, a Halston vest worn by Candice Bergen in "11 Harrow House," signed manuscripts of their television show by both Mary Tyler Moore and Valerie Harper, and an original drawing of Snoopy signed by his creator, Charles Schultz.

Bids, with a minimum of $25, must be postmarked no later than March 31. For a complete list of items to be auctioned, see The Herald "Scoreboard" elsewhere in sports.

Send bids to Women's Sports Foundation, Suite 266, 1660 S. Amphlett Blvd. San Mateo, Calif. 94402.

Write your bid on a piece of paper along with: a) The number of the item(s) you are bidding on; b) The name of the item's donor; c) Your name and address. The number of the item must also be placed on the outside of the envelope in which the bid is mailed.

METROPOLITAN STAFF WRITER

"I'd like to be the editor of the New York Times, but I suspect I'll be satisfied if I can continue to write stories about issues that affect people's lives and pocketbooks and help people to understand governmental and political processes that affect them."

Wandalyn Rice covers Cook County government, local township political organizations and some state government agencies.

Wandalyn joined The Herald in 1970 as an Arlington Heights reporter and in 1971 moved to the Elk Grove Village staff. In 1972 she was named education editor, a position she held until her appointment as government reporter on the metro staff in 1975. Before joining The Herald, Wandalyn spent a summer working as an intern for a newspaper in her hometown, Salem, Oregon.

A competitive spirit, Wandalyn recalls the day she brought copies of The Herald to the State Board of Education meeting — it was the same day her story appeared about a politically connected firm that had received $1 million from the state to develop a test of questionable value for school children.

Wandalyn Rice

METROPOLITAN STAFF WRITER

"I'd like to be the editor of the New York Times, but I suspect I'll be satisfied if I can continue to write stories about issues that affect people's lives and pocketbooks and help people to understand governmental and political processes that affect them."

Wandalyn Rice covers Cook County government, local township political organizations and some state government agencies.

Wandalyn joined The Herald in 1970 as an Arlington Heights reporter and in 1971 moved to the Elk Grove Village staff. In 1972 she was named education editor, a position she held until her appointment as government reporter on the metro staff in 1975. Before joining The Herald, Wandalyn spent a summer working as an intern for a newspaper in her hometown, Salem, Oregon.

A competitive spirit, Wandalyn recalls the day she brought copies of The Herald to the State Board of Education meeting — it was the same day her story appeared about a politically connected firm that had received $1 million from the state to develop a test of questionable value for school children.

We are proud of the many professionals like Wandalyn Rice who are working to make The Herald the only daily you need.
